JEWELRY

APART from the unwavering and solid demand there is for brooches and bracelets, ornaments which cannot be disregarded with any toilet, and the wide range in hair ornaments from combs and barrettes to fillets and bandeaux, permitted by the present varying style of coiffure, we are inclined to give neckwear the first place as receiving the most prominent fashionable attention. Ear ornaments follow next with hair ornaments a close third.

NECKWEAR

Medallions or Plaques continue to grow wonderfully in popular fancy, possibly because the present fancies are even more dainty and delicate than ever. We have a collection of these ornaments which are unparalleled for absolute exclusiveness and distinctiveness in idea and designs indicating Art in its truest interpretation. Festoon necklaces and necklaces with pearshaped drops in fancy stones or stole effects in braided beads and bands also continue to command admiration while the neckchain and guard attached to a locket are indispensable ornaments for afternoon or day-wear.

EAR ORNAMENTS

The pendulum of fashion continues to support and patronise lavishly ear wear in even a more determined manner than ever. The only discouragement hitherto offered to a more universal use has been overcome and it is now no longer necessary to have the ears pierced in order to wear them; as the ear ornaments may now be attached to the ear by an invisible arrangement. We have a choice collection in earwear which will be found suitable for evening wear, or with very elaborate indoor costumes and also smaller designs for wear during the day or for out-of-door use. Our stock comprises a variety in style from the dainty diamond or pearl bouton close up to the ear to the hanging pendants and hoops, in plain gold or beautifully jewelled.

VETARZO BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD.

This remarkable compound, the result of the latest developments and achievements of modern chemistry, pharmacology, and therapeutics, is without equal in all cases of defective nerve power, whether induced by worry, over-work, unhealthy climate, dissipation, excess, youthful imprudence, or other influences incidental to the wear and tear and haste or overstrain of modern life. Sleeplessness, tremblings, palpitation, nervous dyspepsia, low spirits, mental and bodily prostration, muscular and local weakness, general and nervous debility, faulty nutrition, premature decay or deficiency of the vital forces, impaired vitality, harassing dreams, night disturbances, sudden startings, dimness of sight, defective hearing, loss of memory, inability to perform the various duties of life, or to enjoy its pleasures, restlessness that can settle to nothing, irritability of temper, female complaints, hysteria, painful periods, backache, bearing down sensations, nervous headache, wasting disease, night sweats, and all other phases of brain and nerve exhaustion, are successfully combated by this highly scientific preparation. Bracing up the system generally, it gives tone to the exhausted nerves, arrests all weakening wasting discharges, involuntary losses, &c.; restores the failing energies, and imparts new life and vigour to what had so recently seemed worn out, "used up," and valueless.

VETARZO BLOOD MEDICINE.

Never before was there anything like it, nor can its marvellous properties ever be equalled in all cases of poorness, impurity, or other imperfection of the blood from whatever cause arising. No sooner is it imbibed into the system than it permeates and penetrates to the minutest capillaries, overcoming and expelling the virus of disease, wheresoever and in whatsoever form met with; removing all blotches, pimples, scurf, scurvy, scrofulous and glandular swellings, discolorations, roughness and unsightly patches, &c. Its effects are almost magical in the treatment of gout, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, pains and swellings of the joints, discharges, secondary symptoms, eczema, lepra, psoriasis, bad legs, bad breasts, abscesses, ulcers, sores, goitre or Derbyshire neck, it improves the general health, and quickly removes long-standing bronchitis, asthma and hacking, straining, spasmodic cough, too often the precursor of consumption.

CAUTION.—Ask for "VETARZO Brain and Nerve Food," or "VETARZO Blood Medicine," whichever is required, and see that you get them, as unprincipled vendors often try to palm off inferior preparations (usually their own manufacture), for the sake of extra profit. Price in England, 2/9. Every genuine bottle of these medicines bears the British Government Stamp with the words "VETARZO REMEDIES" impressed thereon, in white letters on a red ground, by direction of His Majesty's Hon. Commissioners. Registered Trade Mark "VETARZO." Legal proceedings will be taken against persons pirating.

COMMON SENSE IN A NUTSHELL.—A NEW medical work on the causes and most scientific and effectual means of self-cure ever discovered for nervous exhaustion, depression of spirits, want of zest and energy, &c., with practical observations on marriage and full directions for removing certain disqualifications that destroy the happiness of wedded life. It also treats on urinary derangements, secondary symptoms, stricture, &c., and no sufferer should fail to procure a copy. Post free in plain envelope on receipt of Postal Order Sixpence, from THE VETARZO REMEDIES Co., Gospel Oak, London, or of Agents for above medicines. Price 10 annas Post Free.

VETARZO. BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD.

This remarkable compound, the result of the latest developments and achievements of modern chemistry, pharmacology, and therapeutics, is without equal in all cases of defective nerve power, whether induced by worry, over-work, unhealthy climate, dissipation, excess, youthful imprudence, or other influences incidental to the wear and tear and haste or overstrain of modern life. Sleeplessness, tremblings, palpitation, nervous dyspepsia, low spirits, mental and bodily prostration, muscular and local weakness, general and nervous debility, faulty nutrition, premature decay or deficiency of the vital forces, impaired vitality, harassing dreams, night disturbances, sudden startings, dimness of sight, defective hearing, loss of memory, inability to perform the various duties of life, or to enjoy its pleasures, restlessness that can settle to nothing, irritability of temper, female complaints, hysteria, painful periods, backache, bearing down sensations, nervous headache, wasting disease, night sweats, and all other phases of brain and nerve exhaustion, are successfully combated by this highly scientific preparation. Bracing up the system generally, it gives tone to the exhausted nerves, arrests all weakening wasting discharges, involuntary losses, &c.; restores the failing energies, and imparts new life and vigour to what had so recently seemed worn out, "used up," and valueless.

VETARZO BLOOD MEDICINE.

Never before was there anything like it, nor can its marvellous properties ever be equalled in all cases of poorness, impurity, or other imperfection of the blood from whatever cause arising. No sooner is it imbibed into the system than it permeates and penetrates to the minutest capillaries, overcoming and expelling the virus of disease, wheresoever and in whatsoever form met with; removing all blotches, pimples, scurf, scurvy, scrofulous and glandular swellings, discolorations, roughness and unsightly patches, &c. Its effects are almost magical in the treatment of gout, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, pains and swellings of the joints, discharges, secondary symptoms, eczema, lepra, psoriasis, bad legs, bad breasts, abscesses, ulcers, sores, goitre or Derbyshire neck, it improves the general health, and quickly removes long-standing bronchitis, asthma and hacking, straining, spasmodic cough, too often the precursor of consumption.

CAUTION.—Ask for "VETARZO Brain and Nerve Food," or "VETARZO Blood Medicine," whichever is required, and see that you get them, as unprincipled vendors often try to palm off inferior preparations (usually their own manufacture), for the sake of extra profit. Price in England, 2/9. Every genuine bottle of these medicines bears the British Government Stamp with the words "VETARZO REMEDIES" impressed thereon, in white letters on a red ground, by direction of His Majesty's Hon. Commissioners. Registered Trade Mark "VETARZO." Legal proceedings will be taken against persons pirating.

COMMON SENSE IN A NUTSHELL.—A NEW medical work on the causes and most scientific and effectual means of self-cure ever discovered for nervous exhaustion, depression of spirits, want of zest and energy, &c., with practical observations on marriage and full directions for removing certain disqualifications that destroy the happiness of wedded life. It also treats on urinary derangements, secondary symptoms, stricture, &c., and no sufferer should fail to procure a copy. Post free in plain envelope on receipt of Postal Order Sixpence, from THE VETARZO REMEDIES Co., Gospel Oak, London, or of Agents for above medicines. Price 10 annas Post Free.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

COMMERCIAL GYMKHANA CASE.

Hearing of the Appeal.

ON the Original Side of the Bombay High Court, yesterday, the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Batchelor resumed the hearing of the appeal from a decision of Mr. Justice Russell, who, in the suit brought by Gerald Pickard against C. B. Robinson and others, being the managing committee of the Bombay Commercial Gymkhana, dismissed the plaintiff's claim for a declaration of his rights and injuncton with costs.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Binning appeared for the appellant, Mr. Weldon and Mr. Jardine were for the respondents.

The Advocate-General, in further arguing the appeal, said that the committee's resolution of the 14th July was that Mr. Robinson should interview the plaintiff and ask him to resign. Before going to the interview, he wished to point out what was in the mind of the Committee; the charge against the plaintiff was that he had benefited financially, that was, that the Rs. 750 included monies over and above the actual costs of the plaintiff. Now, no charge had been formulated at the interview, and Mr. Robinson had said in his evidence that he did not refer to the Police Court proceedings. The position at the meeting of the 14th July was that the members considered the plaintiff guilty of ungentlemanly conduct in taking money at all, whether the money was for out of pocket expenses or not.

The Chief Justice remarked that once it was accepted that the committee considered this as ungentlemanly conduct; they could not go behind it.

The Advocate-General added except on this broad principle that no man should be convicted before giving him an opportunity of explaining his conduct. The rule contemplated that a charge should be formulated against the plaintiff. In this case, the plaintiff was suspended without inquiry and without any charge being formulated against him. The Committee were not empowered to do that and even if they were, then his contention would be that the rule was contrary to natural justice and hence void.

In this case, counsel went on to say, the defence was that the plaintiff was given an opportunity to explain his conduct on the 14th July. He said that no such opportunity had been given because Mr. Robinson never mentioned the charge and never gave him an opportunity to explain at the interview. That was perfectly clear on the evidence, and, at the time, no charge had been formulated; all that had been said had been about the domestic scandal; about the members refusing to meet him in the billiard tournament and about ladies not meeting Mrs. Pickard at the Gymkhana. The charge, counsel said, could not have been made then because no one had it in view then.

Referring to the correspondence, counsel said that the origin of the new charge was the interview with Mr. Acworth. The charge originally was not of benefiting financially but of accepting money at all.

Commenting on the judgment, counsel remarked that the issue of deciding ungentlemanly conduct for accepting money had never been raised and the learned judge had gone out of his way in deciding the case; that showed the bias in the mind of the judge. It was wholly and absolutely unjustified to say that the plaintiff condoned the conduct of his wife on payment of a sum of money by Richens.

Counsel then referred to certain legal authorities and submitted that his client's appeal should be allowed.

Mr. Weldon, in reply, said that it was argued that the learned judge had no right to decide the question of ungentlemanly conduct, but the learned judge was bound to decide that, as an issue on the point was raised by the plaintiff's counsel.

A DEFINITE CHARGE.

Coming to the contention that the plaintiff was not heard before suspension, and that no charge was made counsel referred to the minutes of the meeting of the 14th July and said that they showed that the Committee had a definite charge against the plaintiff. The charge had a two-fold aspect. Some of the members at the meeting were of opinion that the mere taking of money was ungentlemanly and some were of opinion that making anything over and above the actual costs was ungentlemanly. They had nothing to do with Mrs. Pickard. Besides, the plaintiff was in full possession of what had passed at the Committee meeting. He was an employee of Mr. Hill Trevor, the President of the Committee who was present at the meeting and who was guiding him in the matter, and Mr. Robinson had said in his evidence that he all the time understood that the plaintiff knew what he (Mr. Robinson) meant.

Counsel read the evidence of several witnesses and said that the Court would have to decide the present suit in the light of the correspondence.

Putting the case from his point of view, Mr. Weldon said this was purely a question of contract between the club and the members and the rule said that if the Committee wanted to suspend a member, they could do so. In support of this contention, counsel referred to certain legal authorities.

Continuing his arguments after lunch, Mr. Weldon said that it had been argued by the Advocate-General that the Committee did not know at the time of the meeting what the charge was but that was not so if their Lordships looked at the evidence. Why they consulted Mr. Ackworth was that they wanted to know the procedure, to go a step further and to expel the plaintiff. The advice given by Mr. Ackworth referred to expulsion and it was perfectly obvious on the evidence that the Committee had definitely brought the charge, had bona-fide considered it and had bona-fide suspended the plaintiff. If their Lordships came to the conclusion that the committee had bona-fide considered the case and had bona-fide suspended him, then the Court could not go behind that and say that their conclusions were right or wrong. In support of this contention, counsel cited an English case.

On the question, whether there was any distinction between suspension and expulsion, counsel said he did not wish to address the Court as the rule itself had divided the question up and there was a very wide distinction between the two.

In his re-joinder, the Advocate-General said Mr. Weldon had referred to the issue relating to ungentlemanly conduct to support the learned judge's investigation in that question, but that issue referred to the 21st July, the day on which the plaintiff was suspended. However Mr. Weldon had not attempted to support the judge's finding though he (the Advocate-General) had attacked it, Turning to another point, counsel asked how could their Lordships assume that the plaintiff knew that Mr. Robinson referred to Police Court proceedings when nothing was said about them. The onus was on the defendants to show that they had given the plaintiff an opportunity to meet the case but had they done so? What had transpired at the meeting was never put to him. It was never put to the plaintiff that Mr. Hill Trevor had told him what had been done in the Committee meeting. He was not suggesting that a charge as under the hand of a Magistrate should be formulated but Mr. Robinson should have said that he (plaintiff) had made money out of his wife's misconduct. Mr. Robinson, in reply to the question "how am I guilty of ungentlemanly conduct under rule 15" had told him nothing. He did not like to blurt out the whole thing and was beating about the bush. When the question was put, then was the time for Mr. Robinson to state the charge. The plaintiff's story bore out exactly what Mr. Robinson said and it was impossible for the plaintiff to manufacture that evidence.

Turning to the rule, counsel said that it contemplated two things: investigation and decision. Suspension was not pending investigation, but was pending decision.

CHARGE AGAINST PARSI BARRISTER.

Pandharpur Bomb Case Sequel.

ON the Original Side of the Bombay High Court, yesterday, before Mr. Justice Russell and Sir Narayan G. Chandavarkar, the Advocate-General appeared on behalf of the Bar Association, and prayed for a rule against Rustomji Bejonji Sonawalla, a Parsi barrister, calling upon him to show cause why his name should not be removed from the roll of the advocates of the Bombay High Court or why such other order should not be made as to the court should seem meet.

The application was made on the petition of the Advocate-General himself which stated that Mr Sonawalla was admitted as an advocate on the 21st May 1890. In February and March, 1911, he conducted the defence of twelve persons in the Sessions of Sholapur, they being jointly charged with offences under Section 121, 121A, 122, 123 and 124A of the Indian Penal Code. Nine of these persons were on the 15th March convicted of an offence under Section 121A of the Penal Code and sentenced to divers terms of imprisonment by the Sessions Judge of Sholapur. Thereafter Sakharma Tamboli, mother of one of the nine persons, named Allabux Shabuddin Tumboli, engaged Mr. Sonawalla and he undertook for a fee of Rs. 350, (a) to prepare petitions of appeal to the High Court on behalf of these nine persons against the convictions and sentences, (b) to apply to the High Court for the admission of such appeals, (c) in the event of such appeals being admitted, to appear at the hearing thereof and to conduct the same and (d) for the purposes of the same to obtain all necessary copies from the Sessions Court of Sholapur. The fee of Rs. 350 was paid to Mr. Sonawalla in instalments by Sakharma Tamboli, the last of such instalments, namely one of Rs. 30, having been paid on the 6th July, 1911 as appeared from the Post Office money order receipt signed by him. He obtained certain copies from the Sessions Court at Sholapur and paid a sum of Rs. 40 to that Court. He drafted the petitions of appeal for the nine persons and sent such petitions to the respective jails in which the persons to whom they related were confined. Each of these petitions was signed by these persons to whom it related and was despatched to this Court by the jail authorities. Thereafter appeals were admitted by this Court on reading the petitions, but Mr. Sonawalla did not apply to this Court for the admission of these appeals. On the 30th August, 1911, the appeals came on for hearing before this Court, when there was no appearance on behalf of these nine persons and the appeals were dismissed. By a post-card dated 31st August, 1911, Mr. Sonawalla informed Sakharma Tamboli that the Court had dismissed the appeals on the 4th September, 1911. One Chakorkar, a friend of Sakharma Tamboli, at the instance of the latter interviewed Mr. Sonawalla in Poona, in reference to the dismissal of these appeals. Chakorkar was accompanied by one Mr. Sudkar. Mr. Sonawalla informed these two persons that he had appeared at the hearing of the appeals and had done his best.

The Advocate-General submitted that on these facts, Mr. Sonawalla had been guilty of gross misconduct as an advocate and to prove that he relied on the affidavits of Piraji Sahabuddin Tamboli and Mr. V. Sudkar, on documents and papers filed with the petition and on papers and proceedings above referred to.

He, therefore, prayed for a rule in the above terms.

Their Lordships granted a rule nisi as prayed and made it returnable on Monday next.

A YEAR of unprecedented splendour will be appropriately closed by the coming Durbar at Delhi, when the Indian Empire, magnificent, fascinating, complex, will draw all eyes to itself as it welcomes its Sovereign. The interest will be at its height during the weeks immediately preceding the Durbar ceremonies, and these pictures of India as it is are all by writers of acknowledged eminence. Sir W. Lee-Warner, as a member of the Council of India, has made the Native States his special study; Sir Thomas Holdich has spent his life in the Indian military and frontier service; Sir J. D. Rees is the author of "The Real India," etc.; Sir Charles Bruce was Director of Public Instruction in Ceylon; Col. G. H. Trevor has held both military and civil appointments and is well known as a sportsman; and Major Cardew was attached to one of the most famous regiments in Indian history—Hodson's Horse.

MEREDITH AND LORD MORLEY.

It is well that in conjunction with Dr. Edwin England, a distinguished classical scholar, well known for his learned labours on Euripides, Viscount Morley has undertaken to edit the letters of George Meredith. The task will be a peculiarly congenial one as he was a lifelong and intimate friend of George Meredith and also one of his earliest admirers. The letters will be published by Messrs. Constable of which his son, William Maxse Meredith, is a member, and which also issued last year a beautiful "memorial edition" of his entire works, to which this forthcoming collection of letters will form a necessary supplement. Meredith's first publishers who brought out most of his famous novels were Messrs. Chapman and Hall, who also were the original publishers of most of the books of Lord Morley. As the latter left them about the time he entered politics for Messrs. Macmillan, for whom he also acted for a long time as "reader" or literary adviser, so Meredith too, left his old publishers, the well-known firm, which held the copyright of many famous authors like Dickens and Carlyle and went over to Messrs. Constable on account of his son's connection with them. This was in later life when he hardly wrote a new book; but this connection induced him to revise his novels which were brought out in a sumptuous "authorized edition" in 1877. In that edition, splendid as it is, the aged author then approaching his seventieth year, undertook to recast some of his earlier works. The revision was no doubt very unwise, and led to large alterations and the excision of whole pages containing some of his best passages. Meredith was a very good literary critic as will appear from his forthcoming correspondence, but his practical criticism of his own earlier works was considered as too severe and there was a demand from the reading public for the restoration of the excised passages, and in fact for the novels in their original form. The author himself held out against this cry and after his death his literary executors yielded to this desire of the public so far only as to publish the cancelled passages separately in the memorial edition of last year.

There was some talk of Mr. Frederic Harrison's undertaking to edit Meredith's correspondence as he is the oldest of his few surviving friends of very early days. Mr. Harrison, in his autobiography, only recently published, has many interesting reminiscences of and references to his old friend, and no doubt with his wonted literary skill would have done ample justice to Meredith's correspondence. But he is far advanced in years—in fact, next week he will complete his eightieth year, and be only one year younger than Meredith when he died two years ago—and could not undertake a task involving much labour even with the aid of a collaborator. Lord Morley having finally vacated the onerous post of Secretary of State for India, will have ample leisure to do literary justice to his late friend, and the duties of his present office as Lord President of the Council are purely nominal. Meredith's correspondence was very extensive as he came in contact with many well-known men, authors especially, owing to his position for a good many years as literary adviser to the firm of Messrs. Chapman and Hall. He was an exceptionally able critic and his letters on literary subjects would be eminently interesting. He was also a very kind hearted man, and entered into correspondence full of kindly advice and criticism mingled with encouragement, from authors of promise whose works he was obliged to reject out of pecuniary considerations for the firm for which he acted. His correspondence included many men who became famous and his letters to men like Mr. Thomas Hardy and the late Lord Lytton, the former Viceroy who had selected for his pen-name "Owen Meredith," a circumstance that led to some confusion between the two, would be particularly interesting. Lady Betty Balfour has unfortunately not included in the selection of her father's letters which she published some years ago, Lord Lytton's letters to Meredith, but we hope to find the counterparts in the forthcoming volumes of Meredith's correspondence. There were several ties which bound Meredith to Lord Morley, his editor, not the least of which were the political and religious views which they held in common. Radicalism and Positivism were the creeds to which Meredith held strongly throughout life, and though Lord Morley's Positivist zeal might have cooled a little, his radicalism is as strong and stalwart as ever. Many of Meredith's novels, first appeared, chapter by chapter, under Lord Morley's editorship in the Fortnightly Review which well-known periodical Meredith edited for some time when his friend was absent on a tour in America. The service which Sir Sidney Colvin rendered to his friend Robert Louis Stevenson's memory by his excellent and judicious edition of his correspondence, we expect from Lord Morley's forthcoming labours on Meredith's letters.

SKILL OF THE BRITISH AVIATOR.

A DECISION, which must have a most important effect on the progress of British aviation was reached during mail week by the Committee of the Royal Aero Club. It has been considered for some time that British aviators were being granted their certificates on too easy terms, and influential members of the Club have advocated an increase of the standard of efficiency required. At present an aviator who wants his certificate has to make two distance flights, each of three miles 185 yards, describing figures of eight round the aerodrome. He has to fly to a height of 164ft, and alight within 164ft. of a given point. This is sufficient to show that he has a fair amount of control over his machine. This however, is a much simpler test than that provided on the Continent for the superior certificate, which is taken by aviators, who undertake long and dangerous flights where the risk of meeting with difficult and unknown air currents has to be taken into account. In fact, as the Royal Aero Club has so far issued only one certificate, British aviators have been regarded as fully qualified after an examination, which on the Continent is considered as only sufficient to show that the candidate is something more than a beginner. It is hardly surprising to hear, therefore, that some of the deaths which have recently occurred amongst British airmen have been attributed to these attempting difficult feats of flying before they were sufficiently experienced. The case which has been most commonly noted in this respect is that of Lieut. Ridge, of the Army Aircraft Factory. It is stated that Lieut. Ridge succeeded in passing his pilot's test after very little experience indeed, and that finding that flying was to him comparatively easy he ventured too far. Soon afterwards he took out an experimental machine for a long cross-country flight on a gusty day, lost control of the aeroplane and was killed. Copying the example of France, the Aero Club have now decided to introduce two tests and two certificates with the result that there should be in a short time an appreciable advance in the efficiency of the average British airman and it is hoped a diminution of the number of fatalities, The Aero Club's Committee proposes that the higher certificate shall necessitate cross-country flights, duration, altitude, gliding, and passenger flights. The Club will probably make it a condition that the candidates shall fly fifty miles across country, and in doing so show that they know how to make good use of their maps and compass, the necessity for these tests having been fully demonstrated during this season's great races. Then the duration flight should be one of at least two hours, and the altitude a candidate must attain be at any rate a thousand feet, France has a "superior" aviator's certificate, which was introduced by the military authorities, and so many civilians have applied for it that General Roques, Inspector of Military Aeronautics, has asked the Aero Club of France to undertake the official observation of the flying tests. Before this certificate is granted three flights of 100 kilometres and a height of not less than 300 metres must be registerd. Whether the British "superior" test is to be as exacting as this it has not been definitely decided, but it is assured that something will be done which will be a distinct advance upon the present conditions.

THE RAILWAY PROBLEM.

WHEN the Railway Commission presents its report to the Home Government, it is by no means improbable that it will recommend a general increase of the wages of railway servants. The railway companies will have to raise their charges in some manner in order to meet this additional expenditure, and a discussion has been raised as to whether this can best be done by an increase of freight or passenger rates. The railway companies will more probably incline towards an increase of freight, but it has been suggested in other quarters that while an increase of freight charges might seriously hamper trade, passengers might without hardship pay a little more for the services they enjoy. The great improvements in the railway service of recent years, it is argued, have benefited neither the companies nor the employees; the benefit has gone to the passengers. It is perfectly true that passengers have much more comfortable travelling at cheaper rates than they used to get, but we fancy very few people will be found to agree that the English public obtain their train services too cheaply. On the other hand, there is something in the argument that a rise in freight charges will be a serious thing for the trader, and will handicap him in competing with the foreigner, who is in this matter frequently more favourably placed already. In endeavouring to select freight rates, which can be increased without immediate danger of losing revenue, the companies will naturally look to such traffic as is absolutely dependent on the railway service. This already, of course, is carrying relatively higher rates than traffic which finds alternative means of transport at its disposal. For instance, mineral rates might appear to admit of an increase, but on the principal mineral commodity, coal, an increase was very recently made, and the railway companies who are large consumers of coal would probably fight shy of doing anything which might excite retaliatory measures from the colliery proprietors. The problem is thus not an easy one. However, we do not fancy that in considering it the companies will fail to give due weight to the sentiment of the public, that sentiment which has a strong dislike to paying directly, when it is possible to do so indirectly. A rise in passenger rates would probably bring the railway companies into a universal unpopularity, which would be far more lasting than the effect of a rise in freights, and the railway companies, who are constantly striving to attract passenger traffic, are not likely to overlook that fact.

SITUATION IN THE COAL FIELDS.

THE danger of a national strike of coal-miners in the United Kingdom appears to grow rather than subside. We recently described the disappointment which the coal-miners have experienced over the Eight Hours Act, and the bitterness of their feeling in consequence towards their employers and their conditions of service. This principally applies to the coal-field of Northumberland and Durham, but at the same time it increases the acute discontent in South Wales. That is really the chief danger zone. There the rank and file of the men are already clamouring for a general strike, and their main grievance is the same as that upon which they held the recent strike in their own coal-field. Although that strike has ended the dispute which caused it was never satisfactorily settled, and feeling among the men has gradually been growing more bitter ever since. The leaders of the Unionists, the majority of whom sympathise with the decision of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain that a national strike on behalf of Welsh grievances is not desirable, are having the greatest difficulty in keeping the men in hand. It is being gradually recognised that sooner or later an outbreak is almost inevitable. Mr. Thomas Richards, a Monmouthshire M.P., and a prominent miners' official, who has always been reckoned a moderate man, sees nothing for it but a national strike for a minimum wage. In the meantime the Coal Mining Association of Great Britain has agreed to meet the Miners' Federation to discuss this question. The difficulty, however, is to define an abnormal working-place and to fix a general wage minimum, and the prospects of this conference producing a satisfactory settlement cannot be regarded as bright.

A BERLIN military paper states that the next German Budget will reveal a heavy increase in the estimates for aeroplanes over the £75,000 voted last year. The excellent results attained by the aeroplane at the Kaiser manœuvres have convinced the war authorities of the immediate desirability of developing the "fourth arm."

THE French dirigible "Adjutant Reaux," which was commissioned by the Minister of War to carry out a scouting expedition over the forts guarding the Eastern frontier, left the Paris aviation ground of Issy Les Moulineaux at five o'clock on the evening of Sept. 18th and returned at two o'clock afternoon of Sept. 20th coming down on its identical starting spot. Nine passengers were on board, and the airship had remained twenty-one hours in the air.

CURRENCY REFORM.

Writing on this subject "One who has studied the question" says:—There was a time not so long ago when questions of currency reform in India had to be introduced as carefully and handled as cautiously as political topics in a mixed company at home. Feeling was strong on both sides during the years when the issue of the controversy upon the respective merits of silver and gold as means of exchange was still in doubt. Happily there is now little danger of offending prejudices or creating ill-feeling by advocating one solution of the currency problem more than another; and the question of what is the best money for India can be discussed with the reservations and allowances that are always necessary in the consideration of intricate subjects. The effects of the introduction of gold coinage into India are matters of calculation, but the grounds of the calculation are so wide and difficult of apprehension that the most practised economist will put forward his conclusions with some diffidence and with continual regard to the experience and the opinions of others. While, therefore, I am glad to find that your anticipations of the result of the continued influx of gold upon financial opinion in India, have been quickly fulfilled, I was no less pleased to see after your last reference to the subject, a letter from a correspondent whose initials did not conceal the identity of a well-known Bombay financier, giving clear expression to the conservative side of the currency question. No one would wish to alter the coinage of this or of any country for the sake of experiment, and the advantages of a change to gold must be conclusively demonstrated before there can be any hope that a new coinage will be adopted.

The great argument for the official recognition of gold at the present time, however, is that the country itself is setting the example of buying gold to meet its requirements; and, as so often happens in economic and political developments, it is probable that the country knows its own wants better than do its administrators. This aspect of the question has appealed to others as well as to yourselves. Since you referred to the indications of the need of bringing gold into circulation in this country, several Indian journals have commented upon the significance of the large importations of gold which show no signs of diminishing but which rather seem to increase, and one of the most influential of your contemporaries, the Allahabad Pioneer has supported your view of the necessity of coining gold for the use of the people.

Gold by itself does not make a country rich or else the Transvaal would be the richest country in the world; but gold is now the sole standard of wealth in Europe and America. By a natural process which artificial monetary conditions can hinder but cannot prevent, India is acquiring as much as possible of the precious metal both in order to facilitate finance and also according to ancient custom in order to realize its wealth in solid coin. Incidentally, this process of absorption is something of a blessing to those of us, who are paid fixed salaries, for without it the gold prices of things would tend to go higher still. But if as seems likely the importation and the accumulation of gold increases with growing trade and wealth, the standardisation of gold in the shape of a gold coinage will become a necessity for the foreign trade of the country. Even the bimetallists admit that the present system has worked well, although they may still hold the opinion that bimetallism would have worked better.

No other system was possible at the time the mints were closed. Exchange has been regulated and the Government has been able to meet its gold obligations and even to save money without recourse to taxation which would have been the only alternative. Without some such arrangement we should not have had the canals and railways which have been dug and built in the last decade and a half and the benefits of which are now being shown in among other things these very imports of gold which the country can now afford to buy. It is, indeed, the success of the policy of closing the mints which now suggests a fitting climax to that policy in the introduction of golden coins.

For if Government has benefited, as it admittedly has done, by the restriction of the coinage of silver, the individual merchant or cultivator may be pardoned for thinking that the time has come for him to claim a fuller share of the prosperity which he creates. The figures of the amount by which Government has profited from the closing of the mints were, I may say, are those of Sir David Barbour. His estimate seems to me a moderate one. I am content to accept the calculation of so high an authority and to take his figure of seventy millions as approximately correct. But without reckoning the extent to which Government has benefited in discharging its gold debts and taking only the actual cash gained from the coinage of silver, it must be admitted that a sum of about twenty millions sterling is no inconsiderable profit to make out of the currency in less than twenty years. Some one has paid for that accumulation of gain, which therefore represent a tax upon the industry and the produce of the country. The ingenious mechanism by which the silver tender of India becomes the gold tender of London, resembles nothing so much as the system of locks on a canal, by which a passage is secured from the lower to the higher level of water. But as our American kinsmen are beginning to fear, even before the great Panama Canal is completed, the largest and most manageable locks can never afford the same facilities for transit as a passage open from sea to sea; and however smoothly exchange works, while silver remains the sole legal tender in India, the process of paying gold in London will be cumbrous and expensive and this country will have to bear a large proportion of the cost. The fluctuations that occur in exchange between London and Paris or between London and Berlin represent only the cost of conveying gold from the one place to the other, and are not properly to be compared with the variations in the value of the rupee, which are determined chiefly by the expansion and contraction of the export trade.

Now that Government has made its pile out of the existing system of exchange, the question arises whether it can afford to make use of its store by turning it into gold and keeping it for a currency reserve. The whole amount of gold in circulation in England is calculated to be about a hundred millions of sovereigns, of which more than half is in active use, while the remainder is held in reserve by the banks. That is to say, the reserve of gold coins in the United Kingdom is about thirty millions, considering the vast difference in the volume of the trade of the two countries, there is nothing very formidable in these figures from an Indian point of view. In a few years India will have imported as much gold as is now in circulation in England, and if it coined its reserves the Government of India could be as strong a holder of gold as the Bank of England. The people of India will no longer hoard silver, but, whatever may be thought of the practice, they will hoard gold in increasing quantities as they learn its value; and they would do so all the more if they became accustomed to its use in monetary transaction.

A CHAT ABOUT BOOKS.

THE SCHOOL OF LOVE by Priscilla Craven (Werner Laurie)—A good story that comes from America concerning a bright and lovable girl of Anglo-American parentage, who inherited an immense fortune from her grandfather on the sole condition that she married an Englishman—a somewhat hard condition, under the circumstances, for Verity was an enthusiastic daughter of Columbia, and at the outset a decided Anglophobe. The author possesses a nice sense of character, and a fluent and graceful literary style.

A PASSION IN MOROCCO, by Charlotte Cameron (Stanley Paul)—At this time when Morocco is causing no small amount of uneasiness to the world in general a book descriptive of the life there ought to be doubly interesting. The story is of an English girl who, after many adventures marries a Prince of Morocco. The marriage turns out very happily but did not last long as Lillias, the young wife dies. Miss Cameron must know Morocco well, the pictures of life in the Orient are so very real.

RED EVE by Rider Haggard (Hodder and Stoughton)—An old time story, this latest one of Rider Haggard's, but not quite so ancient as "She." We follow the hero to the battlefield of Crecy and the seige of Calais, King Edward III being King of England at the time. The story is concerned with the fact that Hugh de Cressi, the merchant's son, is in love with and loved by his distant cousin, the high-born Eve Clavering. To Eve's Suffolk home comes the trebly-titled Sir Edmund, to outward seeming a lordly wooer, and as such warmly favoured by the girl's father, but in reality a traitor and a spy. Aided by a rascally priest and his drugs, Sir Edmund succeeds in going through a form of marriage with the bemused Eve, only to have the ceremony abruptly terminated by the arrival of Hugh with the King's warrant for the spy's arrest, and that elusive individual's flight. Hugh follows his enemy over Europe, and it is only after many thrilling adventures that the final and fateful encounter takes place. It is a fine story and will be thoroughly enjoyed by lovers of adventurous hair breadth escapes, and wildly exciting incidents.

THERE WAS A WIDOW, by Mary E. Mann (Methuen)—Julia Delane, a young, very unsophisticated woman, finds herself, through no fault of her own, a penniless widow, and as she has three children of tender years to bring up it goes without saying that the problem facing her is not of the pleasantest. Her immediate relatives prove more than usually brutal in their behaviour towards her, and as might be expected with a woman of physical attractions out of the common, her friendly relationship with an uncouth young medical practitioner is misunderstood and magnified into a mountain. She afterwards goes as companion to an old man who is very rich; he falls in love with her and they are going to be married when he dies. A pleasantly written story as all Mrs. Manns are.

THE LONELY QUEEN by H. C. Bailey (Methuen)—The reign of "Good Queen Bess" is an inexhaustible source from which to draw romantic stories. There can be no doubt that the reading of this book is a delightful experience. Mr. Bailey carries us through it with an exhilarating swing that leaves us with quickened pulses. It is very well written and we are made to feel the splendid vitality of a more robust age than our own. They are, however, hardly flattering portraits that Mr. Bailey draws of Elizabeth and the men she tricks, and befools, and uses, and the reader is thankful perhaps that he lives in days when there is less intrigue.

A BIG HORSE TO RIDE, by E. B. Dewing (Macmillan)—Miss Dewing is an American writer of great promise. She is so thoroughly conscientious, she does not spare the reader the least detail that will emphasize her point. The story is written to show how artificial modern life in America is. Her Heroine is a stage dancer, who marries a machine-made, methodical product of modern convention—a man in whom all natural emotions have been rolled down under the heavy impact of laboriously-acquired social standards. The scene of the couple's arrival home after their honeymoon is so thoroughly artificial and typical of the world in which they live. Not a single movement, word, or look speaks, even faintly, from lonely soul to soul. Suppose sincere love and genuine impulse to invade such a situation, suppose this external comedy of dust to become insupportable, how much room is yet left between the confines of conventionality for the free play of larger life. Certainly in the slow, cold unflinching analysis of modern conventionality Miss Dewing succeeds in offering much material for thought.

THE WOMAN WINS, by Robert Machray (Chatto and Windus)—A beautiful woman is found dead in a Hampstead flat, and as poison was the cause of her death suspicion falls on the man who was seen leaving the flat on the previous evening. Professor Cornelius is arrested, charged with murder, and positively identified by several witnesses as the man. He is acquitted, but his name is hardly cleared, and perhaps only the girl he loves, Mary Balfour, believes in his innocence. How Mary strives to establish the professor's innocence, how the professor had been mistaken for his brother. Dr. Cornelius, how the doctor was not drowned, as supposed, and how there was no murder at all—that is the tale which Mr. Machray unfolds with great skill to his readers. The story is ingenious and exciting, with its mystery well sustained, but Mr. Machray interests us in his people as well as in his plot, for he draws his characters well. Mary is a charming girl, and the reader is not surprised that she should have two suitors.

LETTERS FROM INDIA by Lady Wilson (Blackwood)—Lady Wilson and her husband—Sir James Wilson, who for so many years did splendid service in the civil administration of Indian affairs—were among the first to perceive the vital importance of a point which in later years has been so frequently and earnestly emphasised by King George: that the welfare of the Indian Empire depends largely on an increase of mutual understanding and sympathy between Europeans and natives. Thus in 1889, a period when most English ladies resident in India practically ignored the very existence of the feminine portion of the Indian community, Lady Wilson was cultivating cordial relations with Indian women of every class, from the ladies of the neighbourhood—"beautifully dressed and bejewelled beings"—to the wives of village headmen, artisans, and peasants. In the children also she and her husband took the keenest, kindliest interest. "The squires bring their boys to read English to me and show me their little English essays. Jim takes me with him when he visits the dispensaries in the towns or examines the boys in the schools," she writes, and records also their great ambition to establish a school for girls as well as an Indian woman doctor in each of the four towns before they left the district—an ambition that happily, was long since realised.

Messrs. Chatto and Windus are to publish at the end of this month "Behind Turkish Lattices," a realistic account of native life in Constantinople. It is written by Miss H. D. Jenkins, who for some time held the Chair of History in the American College in that city, and had exceptional opportunities of becoming intimately acquainted with Turkish ladies. The book claims to give an account of their social life and surroundings, and to reveal their outlook on the world. Mr. C. J. Holmes, Director of the National Portrait Gallery has written for Messrs. Chatto an important illustrated book on "The Art of Rembrandt." He calls him the first modern artist, and regards him as a splendid rebel against convention. Many people will be interested in a volume which Messrs. Chatto are to publish on October 25. It is called "The Bargain Book," and is written by Mr. C. E. Jerningham and Mr. Lewis Bethamy. It points the way to curio-hunters, and is the outcome of first-hand knowledge and experience. It is notorious that dealers frequently let treasures slip through their hands through sheer ignorance, though the majority of them are quite alive to the main chance.

Nearly fifty years ago the late Professor Masson contributed to the pages of "Macmillan's Magazine" a series of papers full of reminiscences of the friendships of his youth. These articles were so rich in quaint stories of Christopher North, Sir William Hamilton Chalmers, De Quincey, Hugh Miller, and others, that it seems strange they should be left unregarded for so long in the files of a magazine. Recently, however, the professor's daughter, Miss Flora Masson has disinterred them, and set them, in order for book form, and Messrs. Oliphant Anderson, and Ferrier now announce the volume for early publication. "Memories of Two Cities: Edinburgh and Aberdeen" is the title, and for frontispiece there will be a portrait of the professor taken while he was actually engaged in revising the papers which compose the book.

The Italian mail service between Aden and the Italian colony of Massaua, which was provisionally suspended, has restarted regular runnings. There is good reason to believe that there will be no danger for the steamer "Rubattino" which is to sail from Bombay on the 15th instant for Genoa and intermediate ports.

Trial at Los Angeles.

The trial of James Macnamara has opened here, on a charge similiar to that brought against his brother, who is International Secretary of the Structural Ironworkers of America, viz., a charge of murder and complicity in the dynamiting of the offices of Los Angeles Times.

The Labour leaders allege that there was an anti-Labour conspiracy. The prosecution is endeavouring to prove that the defendant laid the bomb at the instigation of his brother, who will be tried later.

[On October 1, 1910, twenty persons were killed and twenty more injured by a dynamite explosion which occurred on the premises of the "Los Angeles Times." The manager of the paper at the time attributed the occurrence to industrial enemies of the paper, which employed non-union men. Mr. MacNamara, International Secretary of the Structural Ironworkers of America, was arrested on April 23rd on a charge of murder and complicity in dynamiting the offices of the "Los Angeles Times." A quantity of dynamite and fuses was found in the basement of the headquarters of the union. Two other men carrying twelve infernal machines, were arrested at Detroit.]

THE MOROCCAN QUESTION.

France Obtains a Free Hand in the Country.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

BERLIN, Oct. 11.

An agreement, granting France a free hand in Morocco, has been initialled. The negotiations regarding the compensation to be made to Germany still continue.

LONDON, Oct. 12.

Absolute secrecy is maintained as to the nature of the Morocco agreement, and no information will be forthcoming until the question of compensation is settled.

[The subjoined pen and ink portraits of the two statesmen who have had the conduct of the negociations in the above matter are given by a Paris weekly contemporary:—"The strolling gait, the quizzical eye and absent-minded air of M. Jules Cambon are legendary. This man of indolent mien is a born negotiator. He negotiates after his own fashion, like one out for a walk who is thinking of something else. He paves the way for offers whilst he does not shape them, and he develops them in courteous speech which leaves his interlocutor the wish to go on with the conversation. Scarcely anybody except Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter has resisted his charm. M. Jules Cambon is nearly 66, but he carries his years with careless happiness. His hair is grey and spare. His whiskers, "a la Russe," meet his moustache, as if by accident. It is the classic 'diplomatic cut,' but in a haphazard form that has nothing in common with the symmetric edifice majestically worn by Count Goluchovski, M. y Nelidoff, M. de Pressense, of M. Ruaux. M. Cambon's whiskers grow as they please, opportunist and straying. They are dominated by his eyeglass, which diminishes the cynical sharpness of his glance. When he tells stories—and how many he tells!—all his face if animated with little movements, and the teller looks as if he were at least as amused as the hearers.

"When he went to Berlin the Germans were afraid of him, and said: "It is the brother of Paul, the London Cambon, and he will start an English policy on us like an old fox.' The old fox let them talk. He chatted and strolled around. He discussed tapestry with the Emperor, and gave the Chancellor some original anecdotes about Gambetta. He told M. de Schoen that he was much liked in Paris, and to Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter he served up some amusing stories and praised his green waistcoats. In short, he had just the right word for everybody, and they all were pleased with him. He can do this because for forty years he has mixed with all sorts and conditions of men and his resources are infinite. He began, like most people, in a Ministerial cabinet, and learned the tricks of the Prefecture. He has handled the secret police service and governed the North, the Rhine Departments, and Algeria. He made a conquest of Mr. Roosevelt without being a sportsman, which in its way is a triumph, and he watched Alfonso XIII. grow up, and negotiated the peace between Spain and the United States. He is an Ambassador of the first quality, ingenious, fertile, tenacious, who shows what can be done in the most difficult post when one does not believe that 'it is all settled.' With his suppleness and careless air, he excels in wearing out opposition and inviting confidence. It is impossible to see him without wishing to come to terms with him. There are times when this attractive force is singularly precious, and we are now at one of these moments."

THE GERMAN SECRETARY.

Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter is thus described:—"Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter visibly aims at wearing the big boots of Bismarck. The Emperor, who did not like him, because of his rough language and kept him for a long time at the secondary post of Bukarest, ended finally by calling upon his services. At first he confided to him the interim of the German Embassy at Constantinople, when Baron Marschall von Bieberstein, the most famous of German diplomatists, went on leave. There the bulldog of Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter soon made itself talked about. One day, when M. Kiderlen was paying a visit to his colleage, the Marquis Pallavicini, he met in the antechamber, a friend, who kept him a few minutes in conversation. Meanwhile the bulldog walked into the Ambassador's room, and the Marquis, who is very short-sighted and almost deaf, hearing somebody over the carpet, thought it was the German Ambassador. 'Eh, good morning-my dear Kiderlin! Have you good news from Berlin But, to his astonishment he received no reply and repeated his question just as the real Kiderlin stepped in. He laughed immoderately at the idea of his dog being taken for him, and added, 'All the same, my bulldog would make an excellent Ambassador, especially at Constantinople, where it is more useful to bite than to bark.' When he was named Minister and had to be presented to the Emperor, who was then on board his yacht at Kiel, he asked if he might take his dog on board with him. 'It would pain me much to leave him behind,' he said, and the Kaiser, who likes originality, was amused with the request, and allowed him to bring his dog to the yacht."]

THE ROYAL VISIT TO INDIA.

Rumours Authoritatively Denied.

LONDON, Oct. 12.

Reuter has the best authority for stating that there is no ground whatever for the current rumours that the King's visit to India might be delayed or cancelled in consequence of the political situation. The matter has never been discussed. Their Majesties sail on November 11th, not 9th, as the voyage will occupy less time than was anticipated. The delay, however, will not affect the date of landing in India.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

KARACHI, Oct. 12.

The Full Bench of the Judicial Commissioner's Court (Justices Pratt, Fawcett and Crouch) delivered judgment to-day in a complaint made by a Hindu widow named Varanbai against Mathradas Ramchand, a pleader of Hyderabad (Sind) on whom a rule had been issued by the Judicial Commissioner's Court to show cause why he should not be dealt with under Section 16, para 2 of the Sind Court's Act. The charge against him was that he wrongfully withheld payment of monies due to his client.

The Judicial Commissioner, Mr. Justice Pratt, held that Mathradas' conduct in retaining and withholding the sale proceeds of 50 shares of Indian Specie Bank entrusted to him by his client. Varanbai, widow of Diwan Hassa Singh, amounted to misbehaviour such as would merit suspension, but in view of the fact that Mathradas was a pleader of 20 years' standing he would give him an opportunity to atone for his misconduct by making a restitution to Varanbai and for this purpose he would defer passing final orders to this day next week. Justices Fawcett and Crouch, Additional Judicial Commissioners, concurred in the conclusions and the course proposed by the Judicial Commissioner.

BLOCK IN CARGO JETTIES AT KARACHI.

New Import Yard Needed.

KARACHI, Oct. 12.

Keamari, the import yard and native jetty, presents a very unusual spectacle just now. The arrival of four boats with cargoes of sugar from Java, all within a few days, has coincided with a general cargo from the United Kingdom and the Continent which are doubtless bringing some of the accumulations that resulted from the labour troubles in London, Liverpool and elsewhere. The result is that a serious pressure is straining the resources of the Port Trust to the utmost. The Mansfield import yard being jammed with sugar and general cargo discharged ex s. s. "Berbera," "Toronto," "Braunfils," "Trieste," "Itawa" and "Uls." The sugar ex s.s. "Queerimba" has been stacked at Keamari, whilst some private godowns in Karachi have been hired by the Port Trust for sugar ex s. s. "Islands." The native jetty which is usually reserved for imports from coasting boats and sailing craft is now jammed with general cargo ex s. s. "The City of Delhi," "Petherby Hall," "Newby Hall" and various B. I. S. N. Co's steamers. If the export trade, writes the Sind Gazette, is not booming at the moment there can be no question that importers are exceptionally busy. A new enlarged import yard is urgently needed and the Port Trust have not taken the matter in hand a moment too soon,

AFGHAN ARMS TRAFFIC.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

ALLAHABAD, Oct. 12.

A frontier correspondent states that parties of tribesmen who are accustomed to deal in arms are proceeding to Kabul, as rumours of a caravan being expected there are current in the hinterland. These rumours are probably the outcome of the news from Herat that a consignment of arms had reached that town by the Persian route and was being forwarded to Kabul.

KARACHI FREIGHTS.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

KARACHI, Oct. 12.

There has been more enquiry in freights and shippers have shown more eagerness to secure tonnage. Rates have been buoyant and the market closes very firm indeed. The Wilson line has booked 1,000 tons a month from November to June to Hull at 16 shillings and the Ellerman line has accepted 15 shillings 6 pence for 1,000 tons a month from March to December, 1912, to Liverpool or Birkenhead. Three steamers are chartered, but it is evidently not easy to get boats except at high rates.

MALARIA AT MADRAS.

Major Ross' Scheme to be Carried Out.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

MADRAS, Oct. 12.

Ennore, a suburb about ten miles from Madras, was once the resort of those in search of holiday and health, In fact, it was looked upon as a sanitarium. It has now become an infecting centre for malaria for the whole tract of country extending from Madras northwards. The Government was compelled to take action and Major T. V. Ross, I.M.S., submitted his report from which the following paragraph is taken:

"In dealing with malaria at Ennore I would point out that the whole subject has now become sufficiently serious. It is no longer Ennore alone that is affected, the disease has spread northwards from Ennore, for, I understand, a distance of nearly one hundred miles along the coast and hitherto healthy places which had indeed been regarded as sanitaria are now rendered pestilential and industry of all kinds is considerably hampered. Southwards the disease has spread into the city of Madras. Georgetown and part of the city lying north of it are severely infected and I have had at Roypaettah Hospital within the last two months indigenous cases of both benign and malignent tertian malaria contracted in Triplicane, Mylapore, Adyar, Egmore, and Chepauk. So that practically the whole of the city is now infected though some parts much more severely than others. Madras has usually been regarded as a comparatively healthy tropical town for Europeans, largely by the reason of absence of malarial fever and its complications, but in the last six months four Europeans have to my knowledge suffered from malaria (verified microscopically) contracted in Madras. These are the first cases I have known of Europeans who contracted malaria in Madras."

The Government have just issued an order accepting Major Ross's scheme for investigating the cause of prevalence of malaria and location of breeding places of Anopheline mosquitos in Ennore. They are prepared to supply and bear the cost of an agency required for investigation, but the staff required to locate and destroy breeding places of the Anopheline mosquitoes in the neighbourhood, the Government think, should form a proper charge on local funds, and a reference has been made to the District Board of Chingleput to ascertain whether it is prepared to accept the scheme and bear its proportion of expenditure. Both departments of the work will be placed under Major Ross who will be placed on special duty for this purpose.

The proposal was well received and at their next meeting on the 17th instant an agreement will probably be made with Mr. Parks to proceed to Calcutta during this cold weather. SOUTHERN INDIA RIFLE ASSOCIATION.

BANGALORE, Oct. 12.

The accounts of the last meeting of the Southern India Rifle Association indicate a net profit of Rs. 12,000. A meeting of the executive committee takes place on Friday to pass accounts and consider proposals, to build more office accommodation on the Hebbal ranges, to increase the number and value of the prizes for next year's meeting and to elect a Secretary in place of Major Darley of 119th Infantry who goes on leave to Tasmania for a few months and afterwards leaves with his regiment for Ahmedabad. It is noteworthy that when he took over the S. I. R. A. about eighteen months ago the condition of its finances bordered on insolvency.

INFLAMMATORY PRESS IN THE PUNJAB.

A Severe Warning.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

LAHORE, Oct. 12.

The following notice dated the 3rd instant has been issued by the Lieut. Governor of the Punjab:—

The Lieut. Governor regrets to observe that the action taken by the Hon'ble Mr. Douie in requiring security from two papers and warning others and in calling upon the leaders of public opinion to realise their responsibilities to refrain from anything likely to increase ill-feeling between the followers of different faiths professed in the Punjab, has entirely failed to attain its object. Sectarian animosities between Muhammadans, Sikhs and Hindus and even between the different sects of these creeds are invading all phases of public and private life and are even making themselves felt in schools and other institutions where such obstructions to progress were hitherto unknown or insignificant. Much of this unhappy result is due to the attitude of many newspapers which instead of aiming at the proper duty of an enlightened press in the direction of adding to the knowledge and information of the public and contributing to political and social advancement appear to treat their privileged position merely as means of inflaming religious strife with the base object of increasing their circulation. Such state of things cannot be tolerated and as the general ferment in the Punjab is becoming the source of serious embarrassment to Government as well as obstruction to all real progress and a danger to the public peace, the Lieutenant-Governor is compelled to issue this general warning that any news-papers or press persisting in or embarking on this course of inflammatory or indecent religious controversy, contrary to the provisions of the existing laws, will, without any further special warning, be proceeded against with all the rigours of those laws.

THE ABOR EXPEDITION.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

SIMLA, Oct. 12.

Major General Bower, Commanding the Abor Force, wired on the 10th instant:—"Heavy rain fell and there is a good deal of inundation between Kobo and Pasighot. The river is at monsoon-level and is still rising. A bridge over the Kemi river, six miles from Kobo, on the road to Oniyak, was put up on October 9th, but was carried away. A fresh bridge is now under construction. The path which is being cut through the very dense jungle to Oniyak has reached the Kemi river. The health of the troops is good; but the Telegraph and Public Works parties have been recalled to Kobo from a place about 14 miles towards Pasighat owing to sickness."

Major General Bower, Commanding Abor Force, wires from Kobo, dated 11th October, that the weather is still wet and threatening and that the river has risen ten feet since his arrival at Kobo. It is that a rise at this time of the year has not occurred for twenty-five years. The health of the troops remains good.

MUSLIM UNIVERSITY SCHEME.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

LAHORE, Oct. 12.

At the recent Muslim mass meeting held at Badshahi Mosque, Lahore, a Mussalman speaker proposed that the whole sum collected for the Muslim University fund might be diverted to the Turkish relief fund. The Hon'ble Mr. Mahomed Shafi strongly objected and said it was the duty of Mahomedans to to this contribute towards both the funds. The feeling of the audience was with the Hon'ble speaker.

The Hon'ble Mr. Mahomed Shafi writes to a vernacular paper that as a member of the Muslim University Deputation he was in a position to state that at a recent conferences with the Hon'ble Mr. Butler, the latter and his Secretary, Mr. Sharp, discussed the draft constitution of the University for two hours. At the conclusion of the interview the deputation requested to be allowed a day to think over the Education Member's suggestions. This being acceded, the members of the deputation having pondered over the suggestion of the Hon'ble Mr. Butler waited on him again on the 25th ultimo. The result of that day's discussion was that matters were settled to the satisfaction of the parties.

MR. ALFRED CAPPER AT THE TOWN HALL.

Clever Performance of Thought-reading.

Mr. Alfred Capper, the well-known entertainer from Home who is assisted by Mr. Owen Hughes, a singularly dexterous conjuror, made his first public appearance in Bombay last evening. He had a large audience at the Town Hall and succeeded in keeping every one thoroughly interested and amused during an entertainment which lasted for two hours. The principal items in his programme are exhibitions of thought-reading, or as he prefers to call it thought-transmission, and one can best illustrate Mr. Capper's methods by describing one or two of his performances. He comes upon the stage without any prepared assistance, and selecting two ladies and two gentlemen from the audience to help him insists that these shall be entire strangers to him. In one item he asked a gentleman to borrow a knife, then to select an individual in the audience, to seize him and drag him to another part of the building, there to perpetrate a mock murder upon him and, finally, to secret the knife. All this was done after Mr. Capper had been blind-folded and had been led to another part of the hall. On his return he took the "murderer" by the right hand, and their joined hands being apparently the medium of the thought transmission, Mr. Capper first found the knife and then the victim and finally re-murdered him in almost precisely the same manner as had his "assistant." In nearly all his performances Mr. Capper clasped the hand of the person, whose thoughts he wished to read, but in one instance in which the "assistant" was a lady, she was asked merely to place her hand beneath his without contact. Previously she had taken a ring from a member of the audience selected by herself and had given it to another. Mr. Capper on returning to the audience blindfold, in a surprisingly rapid manner, found first the ring on one person and then returned it to the exact finger of another from which it had originally been taken. He performed other feats in which he found articles which had been hidden or copied the previous actions of his assistants and in very few instances failed to obtain success at the first attempt. Altogether it was an extremely interesting and mystifying performance.

Mr. Owen Hughes' tricks, although many of them were not new, were always entertaining and his sleight of hand was invariably quick and clear. He is certainly one of the cleverest conjurors who has visited Bombay for a long time.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

(FROM OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Sept. 22.

STRIKES.

Our strikes are over, but we have had an amusing afterthought, whilst strikes are in the air, say the school children, let us try. And strike they did, demanding the abolition of the Cane. Poor kiddies, we are led to believe that "The Cane" has been strongly to the fore, and the strike strangely diverted—A far more serious state of affairs exists in Spain, where wholesale strikes have taken place. Some scientist wrote that the heat had something to do with the great unrest, but the heat is gone. The fact is that this unrest is a condition of mind—a kind of Tarantism—which travels like an epidemic. The French observer Le Bon, who has studied the psychology of crowds, long since pointed out that they are peculiarly susceptible to suggestion, and that they are swept off their feet by the contagion of great movements. If there are general strikes in one capital or country, the odds are that there will be general strikes in other countries and capitals, so strong is the imitative faculty in man.

LONDON.

London, after the enjoyment of summer, is now with the cooler days turning its thoughts to work again. Vigour is in the air, and the closing months of the year promise a period of enterprise and prosperity which will certainly have some relation to the prolongation of holidays and the remarkable months of sunshine. The hundreds of thousands of workers, rich and poor, are in high spirits. Work for the time at least is a light burden and even the lazy are feeling an impulse towards efforts.

Refreshed London has, as always in the autumn a thousand oultets for its energy, and the present week is being marked by extraordinary activity in many directions. The sudden change from intense heat that occurred at the latter part of this last week has already made a very great difference in the West End shops. Two or three days before the complaint was to be heard everywhere that owing to the heat autumn goods were practically unsaleable. But now there is an autumnal crispness in the air; the falling leaves and changing tints of the foliage have already caused people to realise all at once that they need warmer clothing. The shops have quickly awakened to the welcome change, and coats, and even furs, are being exhibited in most of the windows down west.

CORONATION STONE.

This information is so startling that I am sending it to you. Preaching at Westminster Abbey yesterday, Archdeacon Wilberforce said that it fell to his lot during the preparations at the Abbey for the Coronation to guide to the Coronation stone a well-known antiquarian who had made a special study of its history. "He was convinced," said the archdeacon, "that it was the stone on which Jacob rested his head when he had the vision of angels at Bethel, and that from that night it was considered sacred and carried from place to place. He believed it was this stone that Moses struck, and that it was carried by the Israelites during their forty years of wandering. "He showed me a big cleft in the back from which he believed the water gushed out. He showed me, also, two much-rusted iron staples deeply sunk, one at each end, which I had never noticed before, by which it was carried. He traced the stone to Solomon's temple, and from thence, after the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus, to Spain; thence to Ireland; thence to Scone, in Scotland, and from Scotland to Westminster Abbey." A great many visitors asked to see the Coronation stone, Archdeacon Wilberforce's sermon having created a new interest in it. Only the front and sides of the stone could be seen by visitors to the Abbey for the top is hidden by the seat of the Coronation chair, and a rail prevents people passing behind the chair for an inspection of the back. To appearance it is a piece of purplish-grey-rock about 2ft. long, 16in. wide, and 10in. deep. At each end is a much rusted, deep-sunken iron staple. Whatever its early history there is little doubt that Kings of Scotland were crowned on it at Scone, and there is no doubt that Edward I brought it to Westminster and that on it all the Sovereigns of England have been crowned from the time of Ed[illegible]. One of the principal officials of the Abbey said yesterday that he had more than once heard the legend that the stone was the rock that Moses struck. The secretary of the Archæological Society, when questioned, asked for evidence; he knew of nothing which would bear out the story. In the book of Genesis it is recorded that Jacob, after his vision of the angels descending from Heaven, set up the stone on which his head had rested and poured oil on it. "And this stone which I have set for a pillar shall be God's House."

ROMANCE.

The pessimist of to-day says that in this age of materialism romance does not exist. He declares that the London County Council and so-called education, the tube railways, and the halfpenny papers have killed it finally, and that it will never rise again. We are an ever-growing population with expanding needs, and there must be increased legislation and extension in various ways. But is only the man who has no eyes to see who says that there is no romance in the present day. Romance is in the hearts and eyes of all who have the magic gift of imagination, and for its lucky possessors the world is indeed a wonderful place, and life in it crowded with impossibilities and happenings.

DRESS.

Times must indeed be bad when people apply to their Government to help them. Imagine an act of Parliament. "All ladies must wear dresses seven yards wide" as the manufacturers have too much material on hand, Government action to bring pressure to bear on the great French dressmakers who prescribe the fashions of tight skirts is demanded by the Chamber of Commerce of Parare, a silk and cotton manufacturing town in the Rhone Department. The chamber points out that a modern dress only requires about 5 to 7 yards of material, as compared with the 12 to 14 yards necessary two years ago, and adds that petticoats, after having been similarly reduced in volume, are now no longer worn. Thus the sale of thousands of yards of material has been prevented. The situation in the trade is declared to be critical, for unemployment, following a period of over-production, is general. The chamber expresses the hope that Government intervention will lead the great dressmakers to direct their activity towards evolving now models which while becoming, will need more material.

MOTORS.

In an American consular report there is an interesting sidelight upon the popularity of the motor-car in England. The United States commercial representative at Birmingham, says he has heard complaints that the painting and decorating trade of the Midlands has been seriously injured, because money which used to pay for "doing-up" houses is now spent in many cases upon the upkeep of touring cars. A partner in an old-established West End firm of agents and decorators confirm this. People do not seem to take the same pride in their houses as they used to. I am speaking now of the people my firm has to deal with—all wealthy, and many of them bearing historic names. We have the books of the business since my grandfather's time, and you would be surprised to see how little our customers do to their houses now compared with the regular 'doings-up' which were considered necessary fifty, thirty, even twenty years ago. To some extent this is due to the uncertainty and apprehensions caused by Liberal finance, but the motor-car has also a great deal to do with it. People do not live in London as they used to; they are always in and out of town. They entertain more and more at restaurants. Many of the finest London houses are used simply to sleep in. The reception-rooms are neglected. It is not so much the actual amount spent on motor-cars that does the mischief. It is the mental atmosphere which motoring creates—a restless habit of mind. I know several cases in which men and women have been completely altered by it. When flying comes into vogue, as I am assured it will within a few years, things will go from bad to worse. People will be on the move always. Homes will cease to exist."

TOURISTS.

Kronborg has the appearance of an enchanted castle its grey battlements, green copper roofs, and three slender spires, which the central one overtops the others, by forty or fifty feet, while that upon the most seaward corner is now devoted to the purpose of a lighthouse. For the rest the castle, which is chiefly used as barracks, presents little attraction. The Flag Battery, immediately to the right on issuing from the Renaissance gallery must not be overlooked, as it is the "Platform before the Castle of Elsinore" where Shakespeare makes the ghost in "Hamlet" appear, and which accounts for Horatio's warning, "What if it tempt you toward the flood, my lord?". How was it Shakespeare acquired his correct knowledge of Danish names, words and customs of his time, and even a local intimacy with the Royal castle at Elsinore? The latter he could not have derived from books. Did he accompany the English theatrical company who are known to have visited Copenhagen in 1585? One or two of those actors were personal friends of Shakespeare, and the assumption is that he did. Of course the tragedy of "Hamlet" permeates the place. A pile of rocks is yet shown to travellers as the grave of the Prince, and Ophelia's brook is also pointed out, but both, needless to say, are mere inventions. The first-named is Elsinore's joke at the expense of the relic-hunter. Every year the "grave" has to be built up afresh with a slag from the glassworks to make good what the English and American relic-hunters have taken away. The Danes love to secret themselves amid the surrounding trees and watch for the coming of the ignorant tripper, who probably will furtively convey a lump of the refuse into his pocket. Both the obelisk, inscribed with the name of Hamlet, and Ophelia's brook are situated in the park of the Royal chateau at Marienlyst, which affords a fine view of Kronborg, Elsinore, and the busy Sound.

WOMEN IN BUSINESS.

A lady managing director figured in a case heard in the Bankruptcy Courts this week. However far woman may have travelled over the borderland of man's sphere in politics, it appears from inquiries that few have intruded into his field in the business world, except, of course, the vast body of lady secretaries, typists, and clerks. Numerous women there are, no doubt, who run their own businesses and who manage certain departments of business dealing with articles of feminine concern alone that man admires and has the privilege of paying for. But in the business world of London, the woman who directs is hard indeed to find. How many of the thousands who daily pass down New Bridge-street know that there is located there a bank solely for women, run by women under a woman manageress? This is one of the innovations of the innovating Mr. Farrow. The manageress, Mrs. Kate Reilly, who succeeded Miss May Bateman, is an enthusiast in this pioneer movement. Early in life she occupied a post under the Government, where she became familiar with figures, and was for twelve years in a newspaper office, where every cheque passed through her hands. Ultimately, at the invitation of Mr. Farrow, she took charge of the Women's Bank. Mrs. Reilly confesses that she is in a singular position. The public at first seemed to doubt the ability of women to manage a bank, but the experiment has proved successful, and Germany has also started a women's bank. Women of all degrees are now numbered amongst the clients of the New Bridge-street establishment from ladies of title to typists and shopkeepers. With two assistants, this energetic lady does all the work connected with the Women's Bank. "While I am not a suffragist or a believer that woman is equal to man," she smilingly said, "I certainly know that these young ladies are quite capable at their work, and have made no mistakes of any consequence, and I think that the inauguration of women's banks would open a genuine field of employment for women. "Of course," she frankly acknowledged, no woman has the knowledge necessary to manage the investment of funds. All these matters are dealt with at the head office by men of experience." Here then, is the limitation of woman in the banking business. In Brick-street, Mayfair, is the Woman's Printing Institute (Limited), a concern run, except in its mechanical details, entirely by women. Its manager is Miss Weede, a practical printer, who has under her charge 50 young ladies as "case hands." In neat blue overalls they move quietly about the composing rooms doing all the work that men can do, except, perhaps, the lifting of the "formes." They work in airy rooms from 9 a.m. to 6.30 p.m., less an hour for dinner and a quarter of an hour for tea—an 8 1-4 hour day, with a half-day on Saturday. The women can earn up to 26s. per week, and overseers, of course, rather more. Apprentices, unlike boys, serve only three years. The work covers books, magazines, leaflets, and bill-heads, usually for various women's associations. The business is in a co-partnery basis, the girls getting a share of the profits annually. Miss Roe, the assistant manageress is proud of her girls, their brains, and their general alertness. They stay with her until they marry, and there is no lack of apprentices. Woman rules again in the insurance field for Mrs. Shelley Gulick is inspector of agents with the Commercial Union Assurance Company (Limited), in Cornhill.

CURRENCY REFORM.

As English goods must in the end be paid for by English money, the consumer of imported merchandise would immediately benefit from the free use of gold and trade would go forward with a new impetus. Other questions like the size or value of the coin to be used and the difficulty of the process of minting, are quite secondary to the main questions of the advantages to be derived from a change and of the ability of Government to effect it. Possibly a coin smaller than the sovereign would suit this country best. In spite of the difficulties in the way which need not be minimised, it seems upon a view of the whole subject to be plain that if India is to share in the advantages of the increased production of gold throughout the world and to escape the disadvantages, gold will have to be recognized as the standard of values as well as the medium of exchange.

EN PASSANT.

In an article in a home paper "Volunteering in India" from the pen of Captain Monck-Mason, as some time Adjutant of Volunteers in this country, the writer complains that exept in Railway Volunteer Corps there is no means of enforcing discipline or efficiency, so that pampering and coaxing must be resorted to. Gharries must be provided and refreshments found, to ensure attendance at parades which is a constant drain on funds. He briefly refers to C.O's of Corps, and in this connection dwells for a moment on two types they who, respectively want to run the show with, and without the adjutant. He refers also in turn to the unsuitability of the general run of Instructors who are posted to Volunteer Battalions. Credit is allowed for a fair portion of competency in officers, and, similarly, for zeal in the ranks, but the trend of arguments point to defects which the State should now step in to remove. It would seem that Captain Monck-Mason's interest in volunteering has survived his actual service in the cause, an unusual feature, but none the less a pleasing one. Etiquette probably forbade him adding to his other strictures that "there are adjutants and adjutants" as there are "Instructors and Instructors" which he more plainly inferred. In the course of my career as a Volunteer, which dates from about 1881, I have come in contact with many Adjutants, and many Instructors, of whom only a very small proportion proved to be the right men in the right place. It might seem that Captain Monck-Mason's theory that officers Commanding Regiments do not encourage the transfer of the best N.-C. O's as Instructors of Volunteers might be extended to Adjutants. And taking another aspect neither do the best men become Officers in Volunteer Corps. Too often a man is pitchforked into the Commissioned ranks solely through his opulence or Official position. And it has usually followed that the qualifying element under the first named was not very much in evidence in furthering the cause, though there was often a super-abundance of the latter spirit when it was least necessary.

Any reference to discipline in connection with a Railway Corps savours of extolling that virtue which comes of necessity. If we come to hard facts Railway Volunteers are not Volunteers at all. It is more or less Conscription as far as subordinates are concerned. Heads of Departments succeed naturally to the Commissioned posts if they so desire it. But even with this forced service the rank and file of Railway Corps find far more satisfaction in soldiering than the ordinary Volunteer, who lacks many advantages realised by Railway men, and frequently performs his Volunteer duties under much personal difficulty. As Captain Monck-Mason has touched upon this point it might be asked what does induce men to become Volunteers at the expense of their leisure if not the promptings of duty and patriotism? It remains to be seen if this spirit will continue especially in the case of Eurasians, perhaps the backbone of the cause, in the prevailing elbowing-out process in Official service, or to come nearer to the point, under an abuse that threatens to spread in Volunteer Corps, viz., that of creating colour distinctions in Companies—a spirit the authorities should strenuously discourage.

Captain Monk-Mason advocates the idea of paid Commandants, presumably drawn from the Army. He may or may not be aware that even this is not without precedent, for in Colonel Chatterton of the 1st Calcutta Rifles, some thirteen years ago, both elements were combined. In two other corps with which the writer was actively connected at various times Staff Officers of the Regular Army were Commandants. And with the knowledge of many little points that came to notice in the interior economy of the Corps referred to, more especially under the Commandant first mentioned I agree with Captain Monck-Mason that in large centres of volunteering there should be a paid Military head.

From reports that have recently appeared in the Press, it would seem that some recrudescence of energy has lately been in evidence in connection with the so-called Anglo-Indian question. Two points seem to be very prominent viz., the controversy regarding nomenclature, and, latterly, the resuscitation of the idea of organising Regiments recruited wholly from the Community. The continual harping on the first subject tends to the ridiculous. The other suggestion remains, as far as [illegible] is concerned, as it did 20 years ago. The Authorities must be convinced of some definite progress in the ranks of the community, in many important elements, before they are likely to try so expensive an experiment as the last idea would entail. It is, however, quite open to the race which cannot fall very short numerically of 200,000 to back up the ambitious projects by some substantial achievements as a Community. In other words let them first support their leaders in a whole hearted manner, for it is mainly to the lack of unity of purpose and support that so little headway has been made.

A decade or so ago there was a certain amount of enthusiasm evident among the Community at Calcutta, mainly owing to the personality of the late Dr. Wallace whose zeal in the cause stands out as one of the bright bits in its existence. His extreneous labours in this connection allied to the calls upon his time in his professional capacity as one of the leading medical men of the City named, undoubtedly hastened his end. At the time of his death there seemed to be a chance of promoting a strong and concrete campaign. No one of the same capacity rose to take his place. This earnest gentlemen had backed his opinion and exertions by constant resource to his private purse, a thing that should have been unnecessary if the Community at large had come forward as a man and built up a Fund which might in a few years have carried a power behind it. The present President (recently elected in place of Dr. Chambers, some time well known as the Coroner of Calcutta) is Mr. John Abbott of Jhansi who has risen to the position of influence and wealth by his own exertions, standing out therefore as an exemplar of the axiom that God helps those who help themselves. Now might appear the time for concerted action. Let the Community aim for a monetary stake in the country, taking if necessary the Parsees who by enterprise and if you like to apply the term "clannishness" have got more than their share of the commerce of the country in their hands. In this country which is still the great resource of raw material for the world's manufactures opportunities are being lost by the score. Is there reason why a cordon of Japanese exploiters should be drawn round the best producing cotton districts year after year to snap up the pick of the crops, without active and substantial competition? This is only one item that at the moment prominently occurs to the mind. One may be inclined to sneer at the Swadeshi movement, but to the shrewd observer there are posibilities therein at every turn. The leaders of the Anglo Indian Community might well turn their attention to the needs of Technical education instilling more into the minds of their folk the need of a more general capacity in the use of their hands, rather than dependence on the over-supplied "quill-driving" callings in which they must find opportunities more on the decrease year after year.

Judging from a recent report of the deliberations of a meeting of the Municipality there is some appreciable want of business like methods in the Tax-collecting Department of the City, which, as seems to be admitted, is unable to locate evasions of payment by motor car owners. The Registration of motor vehicles is at present under the Police, a duty that might well be transferred to the Municipality thereby affording a perfect facility for the recovery of every rupee for taxation The control of the Police over these vehicles would be just as efficiently guaranteed as now. Every garage or motor car repairing shop is probably amenable to a Municipal license. If so a part of the duty of proprietors or managers as the case may be should be to maintain a register of cars which might also show the number of the current quarters tax receipt. It might be further suggested, and the scheme would put a stop to much of the thieving (for a long time notorious) in this connection, that every purchaser of a bicycle should register it in the Municipal Office of his district. The owner of a cycle could well afford to pay a small fee for Registration. Mr. Dhondy says, it is noticed, "that the tax on cycles was abolished, because of inefficient supervision and dishonest use" an admission that seems strangely at variance with what should be expected of the Municipal service of a City with the pretention of Bombay. If the tax was deemed necessary, or useful there should have been an end of the matter. The shirking of responsibility, the evasion of duty, and similar delinquencies are far too much in evidence in the lower grades of Municipal administration, and the public suffer in every direction through them.

BOMBAY MOUNTED SPORTS.

Second Day.

The second day's events of the Bombay Gymkhana's Mounted Sports were held on the Marine Lines maidan last evening before a moderate attendance, the seven items which made up the programme producing some fair sport. A jumping competition for ponies came first, in which there were seven starters. With the exception of H. G. W. Meikle on "Little Slam," no one did very well, and he won easily. As there were only three entries the ladies' jumping competition did not take place. Six sections turned out for the "Lloyd-Lindsay" event, and after some close competition E. G. Pearson's section who rode well together, and knocked the nuts down very quickly were adjudged the winners. The ladies trotting race brought out only four starters, and Mrs. Marshall won with ease, while the bending race resulted in a second win for Meikle from about a dozen competitors. Meikle again won the musical chairs in which there were fifteen entries, after a very close finish with C. Tomes. The Whistling Coon Stakes were won by Mrs. McCausland and T. D. Moore, and finally in the horse scurry V. F. Gray on "Faust" had an easy win from a well-spread out field of five.

THE WEATHER.

The following summary of weather and crop conditions in the Bombay Presidency for the past week is published:—

There was good rain during the week in part of Belgaum, Dharwar and Kolhapur, moderate in parts of Kanara and Satara, and slight in Thar and Parkar, Kolaba, West Khandesh, Nasik, Ahmednagar, Poona, Bijapur, Kathiawar and Savantvadi. Rain is urgently required throughout the Presidency for standing crops and rabi cultivation. The standing crops are withering for want of rain in parts of Ratnagiri, West Khandesh, Nasik, Poona, Sholapur Kathiawar and Rewa Kantha, and have failed in parts of Thar and Parkar, Ahmedabad, Kaira, the Panch Mahals, Ahmednagar and Baroda; elsewhere they were generally in good condition. Harvesting of kharif crops was generally in progress. Lands were being prepared for rabi cultivation in parts of Sind, Surat and Poona. Sowing of rabi crops was in progress in parts of Broach, the Deccan, Belgaum, Kathiawar, Baroda, Cutch, Rewa Kantha and Kolhapur. Sowing of cotton was in progress in parts of Belgaum, Dharwar and Kolhapur. Agricultural stock is generally in good condition but is deficient in parts of Ahmednagar and Satara. Drinking water is generally adequate except in parts of Larkana, Ahmedabad, Sholapur and Cutch. Water for irrigation is sufficient except in parts of Hyderabad, Gujarat, West Khandesh, Poona, Sholapur, Belgaum and Kathiawar. The fodder-supply is adequate except in parts of Sind, Ahmedabad, the Punch Mahals, Kaira, the Deccan and the Gujarat Native States. Prices of food-grains have risen in parts of Larkana, Hyderabad, the Panch Mahals, Kolaba and Belgaum, have fallen in the Upper Sind Frontier, Ahmedabad, Kaira, East Khandesh, Ahmednagar, Sholapur and Dharwar, and are stationary elsewhere. The quantities of food-grains purchasable per rupee are 22 to 49 per cent. less than normal in Sind, 20 to 50 per cent. less than normal in Gujarat, 14 to 34 per cent. less than normal in the Konkan, 26 to 45 per cent. less than normal in the Deccan and 20 to 34 per cent. less than normal in the Karnatak.

Stocks of grain are generally adequate. Wages are normal. Labourers get sufficient field employment and the cultivating and labouring classes are in fair condition. The daily average number for week ending 7th October 1911 on fourteen relief works in the Panch Mahals district was 3,627. On the last day of the week there were 192 workers on test works in Kathiawar and 52 in Rewa Kantha.

THE LADIES' CORNER.

POSSIBILITIES.

A few years ago, says Mrs. Evan Nepean in the "Pall Mall Gazette" entered for the first time a second-hand bookshop. I mean I entered that particular shop for the first time—lost, indeed, in the mists of antiquity is my first visit to an emporium of that sort!—and then Fate, concealed beneath the counter; laid hold of my skirts and said, "Ask if they have any old fashion plates." "Why?" said I, wriggling a little "I don't want any." "Yes, you do," said Fate. Yes, you will! That was the truth. I did not then, but directly Fate said I was going to do so, I did so immediately, and obediently laying down the book, that I had really wanted for ever so long, I asked, feeling rather a fool, for old fashion plates as ordered. I know Fate's ways pretty well by now, and when "the hussy comes plucking my sleeve," or lays a retaining grasp upon my petticoats, I do as I am told (faintly arguing, but that is only professional). "Suppose they haven't any? And why should they?" I thought, as the shopman suddenly ducked down behind the counter. "Now," thought I "Fate will be hauled out and offered me!" and up he came with an enormous armful of loose papers. I think there were a thousand of them. I spent two happy dusty hours over the heap, and went home with a selection; and thus it was I began to collect fashion plates, obedient to Fate—and grateful! Somebody was turning them over with me not long ago, revelling in the rarer sorts of the late eighteenth century, the quaint sketches of Josephine's day, the attractive studies of fair women in Regency times, in earliest Victorian attire, in the (to me) mad and horrible "thirties," and adorable and graceful "forties," and then she said:—"My dear good woman, what on earth possessed you to get all these 'fifties' and 'sixties'? Horrors! Do you—do even "you" ever think they will be of any use except as awful warnings!" I looked her over, from her astounding shoes to her frantic hat, and back to her shoes again, and replied:—"After to-day, I think anything is possible! What is more, I think the Second Empire is probable!"

THE EMPRESS EUGENIE.

Mind, I write this tentatively, this article, I really do not know whether we are going—to be brave enough—or wise enough—to go back to those high and far-off times. So high—so far-off—and yet among the pines of Farnborough there live to this hour the woman whose face you may see repeated and repeated in all the fashion plates of her era, who was Fashion, who was as much Empress of the second Empire as Josephine of the First. I turn over my sketches—roughly, broadly speaking, of those two decades that ended with the coming of the seventies, a period of which I (even I have not dared to write where the modes are concerned. I dip into them, here and there, I take this or that, and I wonder—I wondered! Eliminate the crinolines at once!—subtract them until you have what may be called a crinoline if you like to be frightened or angry at the prospect, but in reality, only let, me, poor slave, escape from the tight trouser skirt that has held me in durance so long! I do not want crinolines, indeed, and truly!—but I think I should like a skirt again; not a trouser! There is a delightful person, all in white, soft, clear white, with the Winterhalter flatpleated ruche threaded with pink ribbons that break out and tie themselves into short fat fringed bows! She has the most seductive ribbon girdle to match, she has a bonnet of white lace with pink across the heir tied in one soft knot, a bonnet I cannot describe, I can only long for it! I do not think I have ever seen anything more becoming in my life. Her hair is dressed—all the hair is dressed!—a l' Imperatrice, she has the fine clear-cut features, the beautiful arched brows, the sweeping lashes, the sad, proud expression—I look, and I remember the Scottish blood, where others recall but the Spanish! I look, and I think I understand.

THE ID EALOPERA CLOAK.

Here is the loveliest opera toilette next. This beauty turns the back of her exquisite head to us that we may see the acute. (I can use no better term) the acute becomingness of that trailing wreath of water lilies and soft greenery, that we may see the longpointed, fringed shawl-cloak of white silk is tasselled and fringed with water-green as to hem and jelly-bag hood: and the striped (horizontally) silken skirts of leaf green and white with a delightful set of flouncess of white gauze held down (perpendicularly) by plaits of green ribbon tied with bows here and there—an enchanting skirt. Her companion is in pale sky blue—the true "ciel"—and it is flowered deeply at the hem with brocaded mauve blossoms, and there is a flounce of lace about a foot from the ground, which is held down by mauve and blue ruches, little thick ones of bright satin. The fichus of the same lovely white lace that adorns her corsage is held down in the same way. She is talking to a man with the most magnificent hair, pointed beard, and moustachios (I cannot spell it in the modern way can I?), who has the ribbon of an Order, and the manner of one of Ouida's heroes. His hand is on his heart and his soul in his eyes. "It all goes very well." There again, is magnificence at her beautiful best. Finest black Chantilly and glittering oyster-white wreaths of silver and pink roses, and a clock with a deep ermine cape and more flounces of Chantilly below. A silver wreath on glossy hair, swept back with that characteristic "lift" we know so well, a bouquet of pink camellias, small and stiff and silver-fringed to the point of farce, but somehow—somehow—so fascinating! And if you weary of the night, why, here is the heroine of Ouida's "Friendship" herself, that handsome, black-browed enchantress, in her dashing little purple velvet coat, her hands in its mannish pockets, her small curved grey had tipped forward over the sparkling black eyes, with the purple feather curling back from the front to the mass of raven hair that tilts it up at the back, a small hat of the moment for any one's wear, if ever there were one!

'CUTICURA OINTMENT A SKIN-HEALER'

Writes One Skin-Sufferer. 'I Wish to Bear Testimony to the Wonders of Cuticura Remedies,' says Another. Had Tried All Kinds of Remedies, but to No Purpose. Cuticura Remedies Cured Them.

"I had been a sufferer from dry eczema on my hands for four or five years. They used to crack and bleed, and were very sore. At times they used to itch very much. I tried all kinds of remedies, and received no benefit. At last I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Remedies and purchased some Cuticura Soap and Ointment, also Pills for the blood. I am very pleased to say the first application gave me relief, and one box of Cuticura Ointment cured it. I now use the Soap regularly and the Ointment for other purposes when required, as I think it is a splendid skin-healer." (Signed) Mrs. J. W. Pickstone, 262, Stand Lane, Chapelfield, Radcliffe, Lancs., Eng., Nov. 1, 1909.

"I wish to bear testimony to the wonders of Cuticura Remedies. I had an attack of eczema on the back of my right hand which lasted three years. It came in the form of small blisters which would weep for a few days, and then dry up and peel off. After this, the blisters would again appear. I have given nearly every ointment, pill and soap a trial, but to no purpose. When I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Remedies I decided to give them a trial. I got a little Cuticura Ointment, and with another box I purchased (half of which I used) cured it." (Signed) Fred Bode, 14, Farm Rd., Sparkbrook, Birmingham, Eng., Jan. 24, 1910.

Cuticura is the most economical treatment for the skin, scalp, hair and hands. A tablet of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient. Sold throughout the world. THE LATE MR. EDWARD WHYMPER.

The greatest catastrophe, the late Mr. Edward Whymper every knew occurred on the Matterhorn in the early sixties, when three of his companions, including Lord Francis Douglas, and a guide lost their lives. When the party left Zermatt at 5.35 on a Thursday morning, there were eight of them—Lord Francis Douglas, the Rev. Charles Hudson, Mr. Hadow, Michel Croz of Chamounix, and the three Taugwalders—and, working very leisurely, they found a position for a camp at a height of 11,000ft. by midday. They spent the remainder of the day basking in the sunshine, but were up and moving before day break on the following morning. At a height of 11,000ft., the youngest of the Taugwalders went back. They found the climbing, for the most part, so easy that they did not use the rope, and it was comparatively early in the day when the party arrived at the sheer precipice near the summit and began a detour on the northern side.

AT THE SUMMIT.

"The difficult bit we then came to," said Mr. Whymper in describing the accident," was about 400ft. high, and it was difficult because the rocks were mixed with ice and were very slippery. But Hadow was the only one who experienced much trouble over it—and this resulted not from want of courage, but from want of knowledge. When we get near the top, the slope became considerably modified so that Croz and I detached ourselves from the others and reached the summit exactly at 1.40 p. m. After that we rested an hour, and it was then that Croz said to me, 'Yes I would rather go down with you and another guide than with these who are going.' I thought nothing of this at the time, and remained to sketch when the others began to descend; but I caught them up when they had got about 350ft. down, and tied myself on to old Taugwalder at Lord F. Douglas's request."

THE ACCIDENT.

"The order at that moment," Mr. Whymper went on to say, "was—Croz leading, Hadow next to him, then Hudson and Lord F. Douglas. When I caught them up, I could see Croz turning round and putting Hadow's feet actually in the places he wished them to be. Then he turned round to take a few steps himself, when suddenly both Hadow's heels flew up in the air, and he struck Croz full in the back with them. I heard one startled exclamation from the man's lips; then I saw Hudson and Douglas sprawling on their backs, while old Taugwalder turned round and hugged a rock with both arms, and I drove my axe in and threw myself backward with all my strength. But the rope was the weakest we had with us; it arched for the moment under the strain—then it broke, and the two ends of it flew in the air. From that time we could only stand terrified, while the four flew down the slope, clutching at the rocks with their hands, and, after a terrible interval, disappeared at last over the precipice, and went from crag to crag to the gracier, 4,000 feet below."

MOUNTAINEERING NOT DANGEROUS.

And yet Mr. Whymper considered mountaineering not dangerous. "Not," he would say, "with experienced men and under proper precautions. Most of the accidents are the result of attempts to make records, of men discarding guides, or failing to observe the elementary rules, such as the rule which forbids two men on a rope to move at once. Nowadays the danger is little enough to those who are careful. The Alpine Clubs have huts on most of the higher peaks; there are ropes and chains fixed in some of the dangerous places. They have left only that spice of risk without which the work would have no flavour. But men need not possess the endurance to-day that they needed even ten years ago; huts and chains supply the place of it." One of the most difficult peaks Mr. Whymper ever knew was the top of the Pointe de Ecrins, in the Dauphiny Alps. But he had some very hard work on the Andes.

A STRANDED CINQ PORT.

Winchelsea, which promises to become the seat of a new lace-making industry, though now left stranded by the sea, was once a Cinq Port of the first magnitude, and remained "Little London" until the reign of Qu en ess. This favourite haunt of artists, and home of Miss Ellen-Terry, retains on every side picturesque relics of ancient greatness, notably in the noble parish church, formerly much larger than at present. In a house, to the north of the churchyard Thackeray wrote "Denis Duval," which is all about Winchelsea and Rye. It was under the large tree by the west wall of the churchyard that John Wesley preached his last open-air sermon, and afterwards walked through the "poor skeleton of ancient Winchelsea." Four miles from Winchelsea is Pett, where his enemies, if he has any, can enjoy the grim satisfaction of sitting upon Pett Ridge.

IN HONOUR OF BRAVE DOGS.

The French Animal's Friends Society have opened a subsciption in order to erect a monument to the brave police dog Leo, who was killed last year in defending police-officers in a struggle with "Apaches". The monument is to be placed in the litle dogs' cemetery at Asiniers, where Leo was buried. It is hoped at the same time to get sufficient funds to provide a special valt for the burial of dogs who perish in defending the guardians of public order or in the attempt to save life. There are already some interesting dog monuments at Asinieres, including one to Barry, who, the inscription records, having saved the lives of forty people, was killed by the forty-first. On the monument is a quotation from Pascal: "Plus je vois les hommes, plus jaime mon chien."

SEASIDE LITERATURE.

A correspondent who recently took a survey of the beach one morning, carefully noting the books and papers the crowd of sunburnt holiday-makers were reading or trying to read, tells "T. P.'s Weekly" tha the found not a single person reading a piece of printed matter above what a character in one of Zangwill's novels would have called "cabbage." That is to say the reading fare entirely lacked both intellectual and artistic distinction. "It was all very frivolus or splendidly fatuous." Those loud weeklies which live on their posters were, of course, to the front, so were the snippety weeklies and the weeklies that purvey chatter about comely and feminine affairs. There were very few magazines, and those were of the poorest quality.

YEAR'S TOLL OF INDIAN PRINCES.

We have lost six of the Princes of India this year—the chiefs of Jodhpur, Dholpur, Sirmoor, and Junagadh, the Nizam of Hyderabad, and finally the Maharajah of Cooch Behar, the best-known of them all. Whereas the Nizam was munificent in the way of public works—he gave sixty lakhs of rupees in three years for frontier defence alone—the Maharajah was "facile princeps," even among princes, in his love of Western sport. He had shown his soldierliness and valour in the Kohat and Karum, the Tirah, and other campaigns, and was frequently mentioned in despatches. But since he came to England in 1898, and got his C.B., he has indulged in that versatility for sport which made him shine in polo, big-game hunting, raquets, tennis, the Turf, and even whist and billiards. And he had shot as many tigers as there are days in the year.

LORD CLAUD HAMILTON.

Lord Claud Hamilton, M.P., who has been giving evidence before the Railway Commission, as chairman of the Great Eastern Company, is the oldest surviving member of an Administration now to be met in the House of Commons. Almost a quarter of a century before the present Premier was included in an Administration, Lord Claud Hamilton, then a young and ebullient Conservative member for Londonderry, was given office under the Crown as a Lord of the Treasury. Benjamin Disraeli was First Lord of the Treasury and the long-forgotten Ward Hunt Chancellor of the Exchequer, and a few weeks later brought the Tory debacle at the General Election of 1868. To-day Lord Claud Hamilton is as alert and active as ever.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS:—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhoea whether arising from teething or other cases. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere.

GREEN ROOM GOSSIP.

DOLLY RE-FORMING HERSELF.

The comedy of manners, says a Home critic in mail week, holds an established position in English drama. The comedy of bad manners has yet to make its way. In "The Ogre" Mr. Henry Arthur Jones has come forward as a champion of the latter species. It is a comedy of bad maners and a tragedy of bad mannerisms. The Ogre himself is impeccable. But his wife and children are shockingly bred. They neither cling to nor honour him. They call him "The Ogre' in his own hearing. They hide things he wants so that he shall not find them. People, as Judge Brack said, don't do such things; but puppets, Mr. Jones may answer, do. He has fallen into the cardinal error of the playwright—regarded the world as a stage. The world is not a stage—the stage is a world; and all the players are merely men and women. Mr. Jones may be said to have taken it for his text that the sins of the children (and wife) are visited upon the father. Nicholas Fawsitt is a husband "sans reproche" But he is also a husband "sans puer." Hence, "The Ogre." His wife Dorinda is like the ghost of Hamlet's father, an extravagant and erring spirit; also, she is a cultivator of Mr Jones's inevitable Third Person. His recusant children are engaged in a perpetual search for traces to kick over. Sylvia has written such an amazingly advanced book that all the papers are printing leaders on it. Lilian is jolly well busted if she'll go back to her beastly rotten hole of a school. Bertie is going to marry one of those music-hall alurers whose vulgarities increase so astonishingly as soon as they get into legitimate drama. In the midst of these "imbroglios" Americans slump; and from this point we are treated to a succession of brawls between husband and wife, the former firmly insisting on a reduction in expenditure, the latter rampantly refusing. Dolly re-forming herself with a vengeance! There are some amusing passages but the single note, incessantly jangled, soon tires the ear. And this is a play for the ear rather than the mind. Every now and again you hear a funny sound and laugh. The Fawsitts move to the country. Dorinda does all she can to prevent her husband from putting his house in order—dismisses cook and housemaid hides twine and tweezer smashes (she was right here) a bad print of "The Monarch of the Glen" he was about to suspend in the place of honour. No whit disturbed, he hangs up a pair of breeches—the symbol of male authority. Dorinda departs with the Third Person; but the Third Person is so non-plussed by her display of temper and her husband's willingness to part with her (vide "The Concert," &c.), that you suspect they won't get—or go—very far. The best thing in this scene—and in the play—is the sketch of Pidduck, a gardener, who describes to The Ogre how he tamed his own shrew by "corpsing" her. "Corpsing" is not defined, but it is a delightfully expressive word. In the last act, Mr. Jonas jangles his note again till all comes right. Sylvia gives up theoretical Feminism for a practical piece of masculinity. Lilian returns to school with a sovereign. Bertie, who married his infatuation, is going to get a divorce. Dorinda returns to the fold of her husband's embraces. And—whisper it very softly—there is "a welcome recovery in Yankees." I fear Mr. Jones did not write this play on one of his dancing days. Sir George Alexander's Nicholas is good in the light scenes, but colourless upon the whole; Mr. A. E. Matthews, in a Matthews part, is just as excellent as he was last time and will be next. Miss Kate Cutler copes rather unsuccessfully with a part for which she was not very happily chosen. Dorinda, a mouthful at any time, requires the fluffiness of a Mary Moore to carry conviction. The actress should endeavour, as far as possible, to produce the impression of babyish thoughtlessness. Miss Cutler gives us malice unadulterated. Mr. Sydney Valentine, in the most telling part, gives a delicious performance; but Miss Maidie Hope exaggerates the music-hall lady to such an extent that you begin to wonder whether the St. James's is within the radius. His dry-as-dust humour is a perpetual delight. Pidduck and the breeches episode constitute the "fidissima spes" of the production.

MUCH ADO ABOUT LITTLE.

It is inevitable that many playgoers should depart from "The Perplexed Husband" under the impression that Mr. Sutro has reversed the lesson of "A Doll's House." Comparison is plainly invited. The one begins where the other leaves off. Sophie Pelling goes to see "A Doll's House" under the amusing delusion that it is a kind of "Peter Pan." Being impressionable, she leaves the theatre thinking; and sudden friendship with two prominent Feminists completes her conversion. When Thomas Pelling, her husband, returns from Russia, she refuses his conjugal embraces, declaring that she has been his parasite, his Sultana, the principal lady in his harem. Then she tells him the plot of Ibsen's "Doll's House." "It is a bad play," snorts Pelling, "and I hope it won't have a long run." However, the problem has to be faced, and he resolves to inoculate his wife with the well-tested germ of jealousy. Pretending that she had persuaded him to her point of view, he calls in his beautiful quondam typist and announces his intention of converting her. Which experiment works "the miracle." Now the thoughtless will declare: "This knocks the Ibsen moral on the head. Life-living's dead." But is this so? Does Mr. Sutro's play prove anything beyond the patent fact that we are actuated by the strongest force within us? The strongest force in Sophie was love, the strongest force in Nora conviction. Sophie could no more have brought herself to the point of leaving her husband's house than Torvald could have regained Nora by adopting Pelling tactics. Sophie's convictions are second-hand—she believes because she has been told convincingly that these things are so; but her love is all her own. So Nora's love is second-hand—she loves Torvald because she has been given to understand that good wives love their husbands; but her convictions are own discoveries that she had lighted on unaided. Each final act was inevitable; but Mr. Sutro avoids telling us which motive force we should applaud—Reason or Love. Thus, in Mr. Sutro's new comedy we find a good deal of ado about little; but it may be accounted far more interesting than the average Westend novelty, and, for two acts, far more amusing. If you can often see the framework behind the illuminations, the illuminations are frequently attractive. The chief difficulty lies in the fact that they have a trick of going out inexplicably altogether. It is a peculiarly unequal piece of work. The first two acts are good the last two acts are banal. Dulcie Elstead, the feminine Feminist, is a stage type of stage types. Playwrights are not yet able to elevate the woman who has "the cause" at heart above the sailor who used to alternate between trouser-hitches and hornpipes. Clarence Woodhouse, the masculine Feminist, is, on the other hand, a notable creation, easily the most considerable contribution of the drama. He is an undiluted theorist. Action is his bogey. It was quite write that Nora should rebel against Torvald, for Nora was only a person in a play; but that Sophie, a real woman should rebel against Pelling is extremely distressing. His own convictions are not absolute, for they rest heavily on his remarkable ability of convincing other people. In such circumstances, you feel rather a splendid fellow when you are preaching self-sacrifice on behalf of a cause to your disciples; but when your disciples start putting this self-sacrifice into practice, you suspect yourself a bit of a brute and contemplate flight. All this is excellent psychology, and finds at admirable interpreter in Mr. Lyall Swete; while Miss Henrietta Watson succeeds in making Dulcie Elstead far more credible than does Mr. Sutro. Miss Athene Seyler takes another step up the ladder with Sophie Pelling. She is a young actress with a considerable amount of temperament, a quality particularly valuable in the depiction of two-stool characters. Finally, I must add my voice to the chorus of praise with which Mr. Du Maurier is greeted in each successive "role."

A STRANGE STATEMENT.

A new Life of Shakspeare has just been added to the "Every-man's Library" series, and it is written by Mr. Oliphant Smeaton. On page 116 it informs one that Richard III. is still one of the favourite acting dramas of to day in the stage version of Colley Cibber, and in the same sentence it aggravates the mistake by associating the name of Irving with this terrible compilation. It may interest Mr. Smeaton to know that the Colley Cibber version of Richard III. has not been acted in London for many years, and is now regarded as dead. Mr. Benson, it is true, has lately prefaced his production of the play with Act V., scene 6 from Henry VI. (part III.), which was also one of Cibber's Improvements of Richard III., but the rest of his production is pure Shakspearean. In any case it is too bad to associate Irving with such a barbarism, considering that it was conspicuously he who gave it the "coup de grace" in the great Lyceum revivals of the tragedy.

COUGHS, COLDS AND CONSUMPTION.

Few people seem to realize the grave consequences which follow the neglect of the common Cough and Cold. How many there are, to-day, suffering from Consumption, Chronic-Bronchitis, and Asthma, who by the timely use of proper means, might have averted these serious lung troubles, at their first approach! THE STANDARD REMEDY for Coughs and Colds is

CONGREVE'S ELIXIR.

Its soothing and healing properties in Lung Complaints have been the subject of innumerable testimonials during its (nearly)

of continuous success. It is known and most highly valued by the whole of the English-speaking world and should be given a permanent place in EVERY HOME. The following testimonial is only one of many thousands, the originals of which may be seen at any time. Mr. H. C. Berry, of 180, Gulson Road, Coventry writes, 20th Sept. 1910:—"From January to August last I suffered from a most persistent and irritable cough and lung trouble. I tried several remedies but they all failed. I then took your Elixir with the result that the irritation in the throat and congestion of the lungs passed away. I have gained in weight and my friends remark how well I look.

BE TIMELY WARNED! Some of the most dreaded lung diseases—Consumption, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Congestion of the lungs, Asthma, etc.—herald their approach by a slight cough and shortness of breathing and unless these symptoms be promptly treated, they may develope into incurable disease. Congreve's Elixir then, is and will always be if kept at hand to fly to at the first sign of trouble. CONGREVE'S ELIXIR is not only the Standard Remedy for Coughs and Colds but is invaluable in cases of Bronchitis, Asthma, Influenza, Whooping Cough, and all Chest and Throat Affections. Mr Congreve's well known work on Consumption free on application to G. T. Congreve, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E.

A Clergyman

Nervous Collapse, Brain Fag, Neuralgia—

For getting things done, making things go, the invigorating stimulus of Phosferine cannot be equalled, says the Rev. A. H. Field. Fully aware that as a clergyman he is bound to make sure of the accuracy of his estimation of Phosferine, this gentleman states that, distinct from other cases, he has verified and tested the efficacy of the tonic himself. It was Phosferine, and Phosferine alone, he says, which raised him from the nervous collapse, remedied the brain-fag and neuralgia which held down his efforts and arrested his plans over a lengthy period. Since taking Phosferine he is entirely free from nervous distresses, and can put his whole heart and energies into his work, and indeed, such is his activity that he has roused many helpers to his cause. Experience has taught the Rev. A. H. Field that numbers of people do not realise their languor and half-hearted efforts are due to lack of nerve force, and he believes they will quicker appreciate the efficacy of Phosferine by learning of his own recovery.

Have No Existence Now.

Rev. A. H. Field, 336, Brettenham Road, Walthamstow, writes: "It gives me much pleasure to testify to the beneficial effects of Phosferine in many cases of nervous disorder, where I have advised the use of your tonic. Some four years ago I myself had a nervous breakdown, and a friend advised Phosferine. I took his advice, and I speedily found that I had acted wisely, for the neuralgic pains and the mental weariness soon took flight, and I was thoroughly braced up. Recently some members of my church, at my suggestion, tried the remedy, and were quite satisfied with the beneficial results. I have advised its use now for nearly four years, and in no case has it yet proved a failure. When one thinks of the great number of so-called nerve remedies, it is satisfactory to find at least one upon which reliance can be placed. I wish your Phosferine every success. When preaching away, I have noticed Phosferine finds a place in the village homes."

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

SIR G. DUNCAN GIBB, Bart., M.D.,

Physician to the Westminster Hospital.

"The value of DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL as a therapeutic agent in a number of diseases, chiefly of an exhaustive character, has been admitted by the world of medicine; but, in addition, I have found it a remedy of great power in the treatment of many Affections of the Throat and Larynx, especially in Consumption of the latter, where it will sustain life when everything else fails."

Physician to the Royal National Hospital for Consumption, Ventnor.

"I have convinced myself that in Tubercular and the various forms of Strumous Disease, Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL possesses greater therapeutic efficacy than any other Cod Liver Oil with which I am acquainted. It was especially noted in a large number of cases in which the patients protested they had never been able to retain or digest other Cod Liver Oil, that DR. DE JONGH'S OIL was not only tolerated, but taken readily, and with marked benefit."

JOSEPH J. POPE Esq., M.R.C.S.,

Late Staff Surgeon, Army, Professor of Hygiene, Birkbeck Institution, London.

"I found during my Indian experience that the worth and character of DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL remained unchanged by tropical heat or foreign climate, and it was, from its uniformity of character, particularly adapted for long-continued administration. The value of 'hydro-carbons' in all debilitated states of the system is now becoming thoroughly recognized; and it is, without doubt, from the animal oils, and fats, rather than from their vegetable substitutes, that we may hope to derive the surest benefit. The Oil of DR. DE JONGH places in everyone's reach a reliable and valuable remedy, one that cannot be too widely recognized."

Author of "Handbook for the Nursery."

"DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is almost a specific in many of the Diseases peculiar to Infancy and Childhood, and I have seen marked benefit produced by its use. Patients prefer it to the Pale Oils and are able to retain it more comfortably."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is Supplied ONLY in IMPERIAL Half-Pints, Pints and Quarts, sealed with BETTS' Patent Capsule impressed on the top with DR. DE JONGH'S Stamp, and on the side with his Signature, and the Signature of ANSAR, HARFORD & Co.; and bearing under the wrapper a Label with the same Stamp and Signatures.
